Cold, Floods, Fire Take World Toll

SCORES DEAD IN TOP HALF OF WORLD

Wave of Zero Weather Creeps Across U. S.; Fire Kills 150

CHICAGO, Feb. 14. (P)—A new cold wave crept across the United States to trouble a northern hemisphere already suffering from earthquakes, floods, fire and frigid weather. Hundreds died in the upper half of the world from California to China. Rainstorms brought the Pacific Coast floods and landslides. Zero temperatures moved Eastward from the Rockies to block rail and highway traffic. The lowest official temperature in the United States was -41 at Custer, S. D. Montana was shaken by earthquakes. The East was covered with sleet and snow.

Blizzards in Europe
Blizzards swept across Europe and Asia Minor, causing 78 deaths in Turkey and raising the total there to 275.

Property damage in Turkey was estimated at $10,000,000. Shipping was delayed along the Spanish coast. The Greek ship Polymnia ran aground on rocks near Ibiza, Balearic islands.

A hundred and fifty bodies were recovered from Tientsin, China, shum ruins destroyed by fire. Thirteen hundred persons were left homeless. Many others were believed dead.

MORE RAIN IS DUE TONIGHT, SATURDAY

Merced Business Area Menaced By Raging Creek Waters

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14. (P)—Today, said the weather bureau, is just a lull between storms. Four days of wind and rain brought one death and property damage of $100,000 or more, and the forecast is rain tonight and Saturday.

Storm Nears Coast
A storm center from Hawaii is now 600 miles offshore and moving inland. Whatever damage was caused by Wednesday's tornado, and flash floods out of the foothills has been more than balanced, said agriculturists, by the benefit to crops, harm to which had been threatened by drought.

Floods Menace Homes
In the Malibu Beach film colony, a long pool of water that came out of Winter canyon lapped at the doorsteps of homes owned by the stars, but there was no serious damage.

In Merced rampaging waters of Bear creek smashed down a temporary levee, flooded lowlands, blocked the Golden State highway and threatened Merced's business section.

Some 50 families in the low flying areas near Merced hurriedly deserted their homes, carrying with them what belongings they could.

Recalling the $150,000 flood a year ago when 26 city blocks were under water, storekeepers along Seventeenth street, Merced's main thoroughfare, sandbagged doors to their establishments.

Two feet of water racing down the highway closed it to traffic. Light cars were rerouted over country roads. Truck traffic was halted altogether.

Secretary Swanson 'Much Improved'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (P)—The condition of Secretary Swanson, gravely ill of pleurisy at naval hospital, was reported as his home today to be "much improved."

"He is getting along fine," a spokesman said. Capt. George C. Thomas, commanding officer of the hospital, told newsmen a short time later that the 74-year-old navy chief had spent a very good night and was resting comfortably. Asked if he believed the secretary had a good chance to recover, Thomas said "it certainly looks more favorable."

Navy Plane Down Off Encinitas

SAN PEDRO, Feb. 14. (P)—The coast guard headquarters have reported that a navy observation plane from the U. S. fleet flagship, the dreadnaught New Mexico, was down in the Pacific ocean off Encinitas. The position was given as 35 miles north of San Diego.

Pilot Charles H. Harris of the coast amphibian 136 flew over the scene and reported the plane was in no danger and the cutter Persim was ordered out from San Diego to take the plane in tow.

Supervisors May Ask Accounting Despite Grand Jury Check

NOTE—All characters, units and places mentioned in this story are fictitious. However, if the reader asks, "Did such things really happen?" the author answers, "Yes," and refers him to the following sources which suggested the story: "Les Crimes des Conseils de Guerre," by R. G. Reau; "Les Fusilles Pour L'Exemple," by J. Galtier-Boissiere and Daniel de Feron; "Les Dessous de la Guerre Reveles par les Comites Secrets et Images Secrets de la Guerre," by Paul Allard; a special dispatch to The New York Times of July 2, 1934, which appeared under this headline: "French Acquit 5 Shot for Mutiny in 1915; Widows of Two Win Awards of 7 Cents Each"; and "Le Fusille," by Blanche Maupas, one of the widows who obtained exoneration of her husband's memory and who was awarded damages of one franc.

CHAPTER I
"THEY'RE marching pretty sloppy," said the younger one. "So would you, if you'd been through what they have," the elder one answered.

The two soldiers were standing, partly concealed, behind a roadside clump of trees. A light wind from the northeast brought a sound of distant gunfire which the elder one recognized as the dying notes of the dawn bombardments. The attention of both men had become fixed on the body of troops which was approaching them down the road. It was a regiment of infantry, and, as it drew level with them, the uneven tramp of many feet that were not wholly in step grew louder and blotted out the sound of the distant artillery. The younger one began again:

"How d'you know they've been through anything?" "There are several ways of telling," said the older one, getting ready to do the telling with a pause which expressed at time his boredom with the obvious and his pleasure in an opportunity to exercise his didactic impulse. "It's not that they're dirty and need a shave. You don't need a war to get that way. But look at their faces. See that sort of greivish (Please turn to Page 8, Col. 1)

1500 SEEKING MAY LICENSE BONUS HERE TURF AGENCY

County Veterans File Applications; Total Thus Far $750,000

More than 1500 applications for the veterans' bonus, entailing the payment in Orange county of about $750,000, already have been filed here, it was announced today by Harry Edwards, veterans' welfare officer for Orange county. It is estimated that there are approximately 2000 veterans eligible for compensation payments in the county.

The rush has more or less stopped, Mr. Edwards said today. Not more than 100 a day are filing applications for the bonus at his office in the courthouse annex. In a statement this morning he urged that every veteran in the county get his application in as soon as possible, as he is anxious to get as many applications as possible in to Washington in the near future. Payments will be made in June, it was explained.

Council Will Be Asked Monday To Adopt Fee Ordinance

An ordinance calling for licensing of "turf agencies" in Santa Ana will be requested by Chief of Police Floyd Howard at Monday's meeting of the city council, Chief Howard said today.

The proposed ordinance would be for the purpose of levying a license fee on the Continental Turf Agency, recently opened in Santa Ana for the placing of bets at various race tracks throughout the county.

In questioning two members of the city council and City Attorney L. W. Blodgett today, it was learned that an ordinance specifically providing for the licensing of the turf agency will be necessary. Just how much the license fee will be has not been decided. Chief Howard, however, said today that in all probability a maximum of $500 annually will be charged.

An investigation into the legality of the turf agency's operations has been in progress for the past several days. City Attorney Blodgett said it is his understanding that the concern is operating within the law. There have been two supreme court decisions, one in San Francisco and another in Los Angeles, which apparently resulted in legalizing such turf agencies. It was pointed out that betting is halted a half hour before each race, presumably for the purpose of wiring the bets to the tracks.

According to a ruling by the attorney general, agents who send bets directly to the track parimutuel machines, are operating legally.

INDICT DEATH CAR DRIVER

Forbes Named By Grand Jury On Two Counts In Anaheim Crash

Alexander Forbes, Anaheim, will be arraigned before Presiding Judge G. K. Scovel in superior court Feb. 28 on charges of manslaughter and driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, as a result of his indictment late yesterday by the grand jury. The indictment is based on an automobile accident at Anaheim Feb. 1 in which David Schmitt, 7, and his brother, Milton, 9, were fatally injured.

The Forbes car was in collision with a machine in which the two boys were riding, driven by their father, Elmer Schmitt, who was seriously injured. Mr. Schmitt testified yesterday before the grand jury, it was reported. James Heffron, Anaheim newspaperman riding with Forbes, also was severely hurt. He and Forbes were returning from the Santa Anita race track at the time of the crash.

Mr. Schmitt is believed to have told the grand jury that he tried to avoid the crash with the Forbes car, but that it came over to his side of the road and he was unable to elude it.

A charge of second degree murder, filed after the accident, will be dismissed, in view of the grand jury's indictment, it was announced today by Assistant District Attorney James L. Davis.

Girl Starts Fifth Year of Sleeping

CHICAGO, Feb. 14. (P)—On St. Valentine's Day of 1932 Patricia Maguire, 28-year-old stenographer, returned from mailing a Valentine to her small niece and complained of being drowsy. Next day she fell into a comatose condition.

St. Valentine's day of 1936 finds her still sleeping. Tomorrow she starts the fifth year of the heavy slumber no scientific treatment has been able to conquer.

S.A. Worker Who Attacked Wife's Escort Gives Up

By BOB GUILD

Lorin Moore, 32, a small, sick, nervous man with a three-days growth of black beard on his face, walked into the county jail last night at 7:30 o'clock and gave himself up. Then he collapsed.

Police and deputy sheriffs over the county had been searching for the WPA worker since midnight Wednesday, when he shot and seriously wounded 27-year-old Ed Wollert in a jealous rage, over attentions reputedly paid by Wollert to Moore's wife. "I shot him," Moore told me today. "I only had one shell in the gun, and I pulled the trigger three or four times. Finally it went off, and I got in the car and beat it, and then I don't remember what happened."

Tells of Jealousy
A grisly tale of suspicion of his wife, of violent quarrels and finally of insane jealousy that sent him home Wednesday night to get a gun, and out again to "get" his wife's asserted admirer, was unfolded by Moore this morning, prior to his arraignment in Tustin this morning on charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder.

He is being held without bail, pending his preliminary hearing, set for 2 p. m., Feb. 20, by Justice D. T. Hayden.

Had to Have Showdown
"This thing had been going on for a long time," he told reporters, and Sheriff Logan Jackson. "I'd been thinking about it for a long time; it got so bad I had to have a showdown."

"Then when I saw them together that night (Wednesday), I followed them and went home and got my gun. Then when I stopped their car he got out and I got out, and shot him." Moore seemed calm and self-collected as he told his story. "I wasn't looking for them," he said. "My wife had gone out to a dance with a friend (Mrs. Emma Crawford) and I'd gone to a show with a friend."

Saw Them Pass
"Then when I was driving home down Main street they passed me going north, and I turned around and followed them. They started south on Orange street, and when (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

FARMING BILL NEARS VOTE

Senators In Row Over Limiting Supreme Court's Power

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (P)—Amid sharp dispute over the wisdom of limiting supreme court powers, the new $500,000,000 farm bill moved today toward a final senate vote predicted late today or tomorrow.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, contended the court had "impeached" the value of its AAA authority by holding agriculture was a local problem.

Dickinson Answers
From the opposite side of the chamber, Senator Dickinson (R., Ia.), declared the basic question is "whether we are going to do away with the old system of government by majority."

It would be destroyed, Dickinson said, if a law were passed barring the court from declaring acts unconstitutional by 5 to 4 decisions.

Norris Speaks Out
Senator Norris (R., Neb.), stepped into the argument to say any division in the court "creates a reasonable doubt." He urged anew that unanimous decisions should be required to invalidate acts of congress.

The dispute arose after Comptroller General J. E. McFarland had been voted authority to audit payments to farmers and pass on questions of law in the proposed act.

Robinson opened his attack on the AAA decision with the argument that soil erosion and the agriculture problem in general is a national problem, to be dealt with by national legislation.

Vaccine to Fight Flu Discovered

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14. (P)—A new vaccine which has proved effective in laboratory tests against influenza was reported here today by Dr. Thomas Francis, jr., of the Rockefeller Institute. He emphasized the study was still in experimental stages. Of 14 persons highly susceptible to influenza, the physician reported, 13 were found to be completely immune after inoculation. The 14th developed considerable resistance.

Down to Three Cents When $5500 Arrived

When the telegram was read to me over the phone I couldn't believe what the girl was saying. Movie rights! Fifty-five hundred dollars! No, there must be some mistake. Yes, I was Ethel Turner. Yes, I had written a book called "One Way Ticket." Even the obvious thrill in the girl's voice didn't convince me. It sounded great, of course, but you couldn't make me believe that I wouldn't have to worry about the gas bill and the rent and even the next day's meals, let alone clothes and luxuries of that sort!

Fifty-five hundred dollars! What had that much money to do with me?

What's in the Museum? Take a Look Saturday

By ROCH BRADSHAW

The story of Orange county and California, from the days of the Indians, through the mission period and time of the great ranches, on through the adventurous mining camp era and up to more modern times, will be unfolded tomorrow to visitors at the Bowers Memorial Museum.

Tomorrow at 2 p. m. the museum will be formally opened with a short program presenting it to the public.

Three rooms of exhibits are being prepared under the direction of Mrs. F. E. Coulter, curator. On entering the building visitors will find themselves in a long, tiled hallway connecting these three rooms. On the north is a room which will be devoted to documents and books, among other things, while in the center is the room for Indian relics. On the south is a room in which will be found displays of special local and California interest.

In this room, for instance, is a prized oil painting of Don Pio Pico, last Mexican governor of California. It was loaned to the museum by John O. Forster. A group of other displays will recall the grand days of the ranchos—articles used by Don Jose Sepulveda, who owned one of the original Spanish grants in this county and lived in a large adobe house west of Santa Ana. Chaparreras, hand-tooled and hand-embroidered in silver and gold; a sash of silk, with a fringe of pure gold; trousers and caps used by Sepulveda. These articles are more than 100 years old.

Dozens of other articles reveal the life and customs of early California days—such as a flint lighter used at San Juan Capistrano before the use of matches.

One of the most interesting exhibits of strictly local history is the original deed to Birch park, given to the city by A. Otis Birch, Emma L. Smith and Q. R. Smith. In the same room, the visitors will find a case devoted to the late Madame Helene Modjeska, famous actress of the nineties, whose home was in the Forest of Arden in Modjeska canyon near Arden.

Another display shows relics of mining camp days—articles rescued from oblivion from ghost towns.

The American flag given to Company L on May 5, 1898, by the citizens of Orange county is on display, too. The presentation was made on the occasion of the company's departure for San Francisco to serve in the Spanish-American war.

Cases of birds and butterflies, and a reproduction of life on the ocean floor add variety to this room. The Indian room displays have been arranged by John Winterburn to show the life and customs of the natives who were here before the white men came. At either end of the room is a reproduction of a typical Indian scene. A wide variety of Indian artifacts, many of them found in Orange county, will offer opportunity for study of Indian life and customs. Indian foods, manos, metates, hammers, grinders, arrows, spear heads and wooden shovels are on display here. One exhibit shows the asphaltum which was so valuable to the Indians in repair or (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 7)

The incident occurred about 20 years ago when a wheat boat, carrying a crew of approximately 50, caught fire. The sea skipper will tell how he and a few survivors adjusted themselves to life on the island, and how they were rescued seven years later.

Kiwanians And Wives Party In 'Court Of Hearts'

Kiwanians and their wives walked into a "court of hearts" last night when they entered the Ebell clubhouse for their Valentine's eve party.

Decorated under direction of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford B. Steele, the ballroom was an array of red and white decorations. Around the room were huge red hearts. From the chandelier a white heart was suspended, from which hung smaller red, irregular-shaped hearts.

Small pussy willow trees, flecked with red and white paper blossoms, were potted and set around the room and on the stage. Colonnades were bound with red and silver corrugated paper.

Bridge Played
In the lounge, where bridge was played, spring blossoms had been arranged. Prizes in the play went to Mrs. A. P. Arnold, Dr. John Wehrly and J. E. Leibig for contract, and to Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Mayhill for auction. Dreaden boudoir lamps were presented as awards to the women, and metal cigarette boxes to the men.

Special valentine dances and novelty features were included in the ballroom program. John Cassell's nine-piece Columbia network orchestra had been obtained by Claude Knox to play for the event, with solo numbers by Patricia Kay.

Mock Arrest
Merriment hit an early peak about 9:30 when, as a "gag," Loren Moore, past president, barely escaped arraignment on charges of shooting his wife's escort. The ex-prexy presented sufficient identification, however, to exonerate him from the mock arrest.

COLDS KEEP MANY FROM SCHOOLS

Hundreds of Santa Ana school children have been forced to stay away from their classes during the past week as the result of an epidemic of influenza and common colds, according to figures released today by Superintendent of Schools Frank Henderson. Indications are, however, that the epidemic is gradually becoming less serious.

Last Tuesday, absences in the 14 elementary schools in the city totaled 525. Wednesday the total was 353, Thursday, 416, and today there were 328 absent from classes. The Julia Lathrop Junior High school had a total of 50 absent Tuesday, 34 Wednesday, 46 yesterday and 40 today. The total at Francis Willard Junior High school was greater, with 150 absent Tuesday, 130 Wednesday, 159 yesterday and 130 today. The high school's total was 168 on Tuesday, 145 Wednesday, 155 yesterday and 187 today.

The totals for the entire school system, with the exception of the junior college, are as follows: Tuesday 893, Wednesday 662, Thursday 779, and today 685.

OLD COLLEGE IS BURNED

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (AP)—A four-alarm fire in Manhattan's most exclusive residential district today burned through three floors of historic Hunter College, largest women's school in the United States. No students were in the building at the time.

The second large blaze in as many days to assemble large units of New York's fire department was just nine blocks north of the scene of Wednesday night's fire in Lunt's Chinese restaurant which cost six lives.

Today's blaze gave firemen a difficult battle under the handicap of a sleet storm driven on a high wind.

The fire broke out in the central portion of the T-shaped old building, founded as a normal school for the New York city school system. It is now part of the municipal education system.

Mr. Roosevelt, who has called upon the people of Nebraska to insist upon Senator Norris standing for re-election this year, discussed the senate situation with the Nebraskans.

The political wise men looked toward the prizes today and wondered whether supporters of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas would enter him in Republican presidential primaries on which increasing attention is centered. The time is growing short. Today is the last for filing in Illinois.

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 14. (AP)—A brief series of earthquakes, one of which was sharp enough to set off the government's strong motion seismograph here for the first time since Thanksgiving day, caused apprehension among Montana residents today.

The jolts, reported by all principal cities in the west central part of the state, were capped by one at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Helena, which the weather bureau described as "moderate." It lasted between 10 and 15 seconds. Tremors also were felt in Butte, Missoula, Livingston, Kalispell and Great Falls.

On Feb. 11, City Judge Mitchell handled 14 cases, and fines assessed totaled $33.

LIQUOR DEALER TO BE PRINTED
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14. (AP)—The board of equalization office governing Southern California announced today all applicants for liquor licenses must be fingerprinted hereafter.

Kendall B. Perkins, the administrative assistant, said the order applied to renewals of licenses as well, and was designed to eliminate undesirable and those with criminal records.

Perkins said later the order may be extended to all employees of licensed places. Harold Gillette, a fingerprint expert, has been hired by the board and will compare the prints with police, state and department of justice files.

The order applies to the fourth district, embracing the counties of Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego and Imperial.

The zero beat stretched from the Canadian border to Northern Oklahoma and east to the Mississippi and was moving south and eastward. Trains were cancelled in some areas in the Dakotas and Minnesota as a north west winds presage blizzards.

In Chicago the temperature dropped from the freezing point last night to 20 degrees at mid-morning.

FRIGID WAVE BREAKS RECORD IN MANY PLACES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (AP)—Even the chiefs of the weather bureau shivered today as they gave the cold statistics on the frigid wave that has rolled over much of the country.

All previous records for continuous cold have been broken in some districts.

Averages for the last four weeks show:

Devils Lake, N. D., 18 below.
Moorhead, Minn., 15 below.
Bismarck, N. D., 12 below.

Averages for the last three weeks:

Omaha, 3 below.
Duluth, 7 below.
Minneapolis, 10 below.
Charles City, Iowa, 5 below.

The mercury has been below zero daily for the last three weeks as far south as points in Nebraska, breaking all previous records, while in other north-central sections the most prolonged periods of sub-zero readings have occurred.

Farm operations east of the Rocky Mountains have been virtually at a standstill.

Party to File for F.D.R. in Nebraska

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (AP)—Word that President Roosevelt's name would be entered in the Nebraska presidential preference primary April 6 was given him today by Senator Burke (D., Neb.) and Arthur Mullen, former Democratic campaign manager.

Mr. Roosevelt, who has called upon the people of Nebraska to insist upon Senator Norris standing for re-election this year, discussed the senate situation with the Nebraskans.

The political wise men looked toward the prizes today and wondered whether supporters of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas would enter him in Republican presidential primaries on which increasing attention is centered. The time is growing short. Today is the last for filing in Illinois.

RED EMBASSY IN MUKDEN CLOSED

MOSCOW, Feb. 14. (AP)—The Soviet government today ordered its consulate in Mukden, Manchoukuo, closed.

An official spokesman explained that the step was taken "in view of the created conditions." These conditions, he said, made it unnecessary to keep an office "which we can get along without."

Meanwhile coincident with publication of reports of a Japanese Manchoukuoan invasion of Soviet-authorized Outer Mongolia, the authoritative Soviet writer, Karl Radek, declared in Izvestia today that Japanese militarists "have lost their minds," and warned them not to try the Soviet's nerves.

"They will learn our nerves are in complete order, and if necessary, our hands, too," Radek asserted.

Numerous clashes have occurred recently along the Manchoukuo-Outer Mongolia border, the most serious a clash between Japanese-Manchoukuoan troops and Outer Mongolian forces Wednesday in which Soviet dispatches said 10 Japanese-Manchoukuoans were killed after invading Outer Mongolia.

"The whole world, Radek asserted, "will place the blame for recent events on the shoulders of leaders of the Japanese army and its institutions in Japan and Manchoukuo."

Soviet advances from Ulan Bator, Outer Mongolia, said the alleged Japanese-Manchoukuoan invaders of Outer Mongolia in the disputed far eastern border territory were ejected after two fights near the Mongolian post of Bulun Dersu.

OIL SANCTIONS UNLIKELY NOW

GENEVA, Feb. 14. (AP)—Advices from Washington that congressional legislation to authorize an oil embargo seemed improbable strengthened today a general Geneva belief that application of a League of Nations oil sanction against Italy appeared unlikely.

The league committee of experts, in its report on the possibilities of enforcement of an oil sanction, had ruled that unless the United States participated the proposed extension of penalties upon Italy for its war in Ethiopia would fail.

A report of the possibilities of enforcing an oil sanction, drawn up by the committee with particular reference to the position of the United States and Venezuela, now goes to the league governments.

FACES NON-SUPPORT COUNT

George F. Salisbury, Los Alamitos, arrested yesterday on charges of non-support of a minor child, was arraigned in the Santa Ana justice court today and pleaded not guilty. Justice of the Peace Chris P. Pann, Huntington Beach, who is on the bench in the absence of Justice of the Peace K. E. Morrison, set Feb. 20 as the time for the trial. Salisbury was released on his own recognizance.

MORE ABOUT MUSEUM

construction of the articles they used.

Old ollas and jars, made by Indians, some of them used in cooking, are to be seen. There is a display of prehistoric baskets.

The history of San Juan Capistrano mission is recalled by display of a wooden cap from the altar pillar in the old mission chapel. The keystone from the original church is there. Hat bands and other articles made by the last of the mission Indians are displayed.

Most visitors will enjoy a stroll through the long hallway. There they will find a guest book in which to register—a book bound in carved driftwood picked up at Huntington Beach by Fred Brooks, Huntington Beach High school teacher. The book was printed and assembled by T. E. Williams, head of the high school and junior college printing department. Beside the book is a small mission bell on a standard, a replica of those along El Camino Real, and cast by Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, who cast the original El Camino Real bells.

Other displays include two striking paintings of Indians, by the late Fanny Bixby Spencer; a grandfather clock, and another painting of the first residence in Santa Ana.

One outstanding display is a large group of mission photographs, in the south room. Upstairs are other pictures of pioneers and of historic places.

DOUBLE FEES FACING CAR DEALERS

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 14. (AP)—Automobile dealers learned yesterday that unless machines in stock were registered by March 1 with the state the vehicles would be subject to a county property tax as well as the new state property levy.

A delegation of 17, led by J. E. Rodman, Fresno, president of the Northern California Motor Car Dealers' Association, appeared before a meeting of some 50 county assessors to ask exemption from the county property levy.

Rodman pointed out that if a machine in stock were not registered by the dealer, and the county tax were assessed, the state tax could be collected later when the automobile was licensed, thus imposing "double taxation."

The same situation also applies to second-hand automobiles. Rodman said if dealers were to escape the double tax, they would have to register about 30,000 new machines in stock before March 1, requiring an outlay of well over a million dollars.

WOMEN ASK PROBATION

Mina Barron and Carmen Hernandez, convicted of burglarizing four local stores, applied for probation when they appeared for sentence today in Superior Judge James L. Allen's court. Their hearing was set for Feb. 21.

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor

By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

Tired or rambling in the rain, so we'll sit in the office for an hour or two and see what devilment we can think up. Not so hard to do, either. Just sit and listen for awhile.

For instance: That 160 acres of county airport, which lies adjacent to Eddie Martin's port out at the end—or what's now the end of Main street in Santa Ana. Why couldn't something be done about that? Why couldn't it be handed over to the government for instance, and let 'em make it a landing field for March Field aviators—they're always swarming around, anyway, looking for someplace to land.

Just think, then, the fun folks in Costa Mesa'd have. Their low flying ordinance wouldn't be worth much, then, would it?

And, it would probably be an everyday occurrence for some sedan to come home in the evening to find one slightly used tri-motor job resting on the front room divan. Or noising the pigs out of the barnyard.

If we remember, the last one who killed the family dog, when the flyer made a forced landing through the side window of a house. If they'd only made that a government landing field, there'd probably be lots of fun—maybe.

We glared at the speaker of our state assembly yesterday. But he didn't know it!

He went sailing by, and we admired his automobile license, but we glared, nevertheless, because we didn't have one like it.

Speaker Craig is assemblyman from the Seventy-fifth district. His auto license reads "A-75." Not so bad, huh?

But, we have him whipped—ours is in a series given out only to county editors, milk truck drivers, businessmen and silk hosiery peddlers—reads something like 5P-83,968,274½.

So, the next time we see Ted Craig, we won't glare at him. We'll feel superior, because our license reads higher, anyway.

See, we haven't been doing so badly, picking 'em out of the air, have we? Or have we?

Let's see—can't say anything about city elections—there should be a story about 'em right alongside of us, unless the shop foreman's foot slips—can't say anything about Placentia—talked about Stew Strathman's mustache just the other day. Not Newport—used that, too. Whoa! The party's over! We just thought—dog!

Now listen, kiddies—this dog business has gone just far enough—we know that you're getting darn good and tired of dogs, but not half as tired as we are. Here we've been, with nine dogs in the editorial lap, figuratively, of course, and nobody does anything about it. There should be a law! Doesn't somebody, please, want a dog? Or three dogs, or even five? Think of the mice they might catch! Or the chickens!

If, in a weak moment, someone might start thinking that a Fido or a Sport might look well parked in front of the family fireplace, all he needs to do is get in touch with the dog editor. Just whistle—once!

Sensing angry mumbblings from our readers, as well as a meaning glance from our boss, we'd better do something. Let's see—what about Laguna? Lovely place, isn't it? Oh yes, and let's stop and call on Judge Hayden at Tustin, as we pass through.

Nothing doing there—the front door on the city hall's locked—must be fiesta time, or they close the city hall early.

Oh well, here's Laguna canyon—pretty muddy, but passable. Tractors shoving slush in all directions, and cars waiting to get through. Lovely green grass—must have arranged that for the Laguna painters—we look for an epidemic of green grass pictures before long. And wouldn't blame the picture-drawers a bit, either.

Lots of white-belly white-faced calves—or is it calves—galloping about. Cute—pardon us—interesting small houses in the canyon—wonder if artists live in all of 'em? And, what's that tower, white, with an interesting roof, standing on the hill above Laguna? We'll have to ask Don White. Pardon for a minute.

The tower isn't so romantic, after all. It has something to do with Laguna's sewer.

City Clerk Ed Beaver says hello, and then they arrange a special rainstorm—don't know whether to be insulted or not—so we turn up the editorial collar, growlingly hoist the editorial frame into the car and streak back through the mud for home.

And, from that, you can see that we might as well have stayed in the office—then we could have told about the pretty pink trees between Santa Ana and Tustin, and perhaps could dig up something on Costa Mesa's plan for giving free baskets of food to new families in town. And maybe Pat Patterson's new overhead crossing at Newport could have been explained a bit—guess we should have stayed at home.

MUNICIPAL POLITICS HOT AS DATE FOR FILING ARRIVES

INTEREST AT H. B. SAID GREATEST

Twelve County Cities To Elect Councilmen In Municipal Races

Circulation of political valentines in the form of nomination petitions, for aspiring city officials will start in 12 Orange county municipalities today.

With the opening date for filing and circulation of petitions for city offices today, many hot political battles were forecast in various county communities. In many towns, terms of at least two councilmen and usually city clerk and treasurer expire. Petitions must be filed with the city clerk by March 25, with elections slated for April 14.

At Huntington Beach one of the most interesting races in years is forecast by political observers, with three women and at least a dozen men seeking three seats on the council.

Women May File
Mrs. Minnie Higgins and Mrs. Frank Betts will probably enter the council race, and another woman's entry is expected, according to rumors. Also reported seeking council seats are Tony Tovatt and Lee Channess, incumbents. John Marion, the third member whose term expires, will not run, it was reported today.

Men rumored preparing to seek council positions at Huntington Beach are Ed Stevens, former councilman; Herbert Wood, K. M. Holsenbach, J. A. Gores, O. M. Wallace, Walter Dabney, Art Hendrickson and Sol White.

No candidate is reported in the field for the position of City Clerk Charles R. Furr, who will probably seek re-election, it was reported, but interest has been added to the race for city treasurer with the rumor that the Rev. L. A. Arthur, Baptist pastor, will file for the position. City Treasurer B. Butcher will file for re-election, according to reports.

Cloudy at Clemente
The political sky was reported somewhat cloudy at San Clemente, where terms of Councilmen Earl Von Horst and Monroe Thibault expire. ## 'Ham 'n Eggs' Authoring, Canned Thrills, Writers, In Laguna 'Coastlines'

By McDONALD WHITE

Although Laguna is widely known as an artists' center, it is also famed as a writers' colony.

Looking at this writing business on a purely "ham 'n eggs" basis, fiction serves much the same purpose in our lives as a can of soup. It's a condensed thrill or emotion of some kind all ready to be opened and devoured. Few of us have the time or energy to concoct from the original ingredients a pot of tasty soup. If we're in a hurry, we simply open a can and let it simmer on the stove. The same methods apply to our amusements.

Most of us haven't the time or can't afford to go out and find adventure first hand. So the next best thing is to buy a magazine or a book, or a good newspaper, to get a vicarious thrill. The shelves and racks are crammed with every conceivable kind of reading matter, and it's all seasoned to taste. So take your pick of this wide assortment of canned adventure. If you don't like that brand, try another writer.

Let's knock on William Colt MacDonald's workshop door and see what he's doing now. It's only 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a bad time to call on an author, but we'll take a chance. A stepping-stone pathway leads up to the door. He doesn't look any too happy about the intrusion, mumbled something about being right in the middle of a short story. But with due apologies we go on in.

The workshop is the north corner of the house, and has a desk with a big typewriter on it and two chairs and a couch. The air is smoky. A well-filled sheet of paper is in the typewriter. We sit down and talk about writing.

"When I was in the advertising department of the American Mercury," he began, "I wrote a novel. It's still kicking around somewhere. Then I wrote another book, this time a Western story. It sold right off. So I've been writing Westerns ever since."

Since then he's sold 15 Western novels to Covici-Fried, Inc., publishers. He turns out three or four novels a year, with a few shorts thrown in for good measure. "Have you any set method of approach for your stories?" I asked. "In other words, how do you go at writing?"

He smiled at that one. All writers get that question fired at them, and always will. Mayor Elmer J. Hughes and Councilman E. J. Warder are expected to file. The third position, vacant since death of a council member, will be filled by appointment. Mrs. Ollie B. Padrick, city clerk, and James J. Stawald, city treasurer, will probably be candidates to succeed themselves, it was rumored there. Tustin's political situation seems quiet. Mayor William Huntley and Councilman J. F. Pieper have not announced their intention as to running for re-election. Terms of City Clerk J. R. Harbour and Treasurer Walter J. Pollard also expire, but they had made no announcement as to filing today.

FOUNDERS' DAY MEETING HELD

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—Tracing history of the Congress of Parent-Teachers from the date of its organization 39 years ago to the present time, Mrs. R. P. Mears, county chairman of Founders' Day programs, told of the many achievements of the organization at a meeting of the Huntington Beach High School Parent-Teachers association Wednesday night.

Mrs. Ray McCormack, vice-president of the organization, who presided at the meeting held in the school cafeteria, lighted the candles on the huge birthday cake during the anniversary ceremonies.

Mr. M. G. Jones, principal of the high school, in making the welcome address to 100 parents and teachers present, declared that the organization is a part of the school in itself because parents take an active part.

Mary Jane Lambert gave a Spanish dance, accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Colvin; John Hommerich, Swiss soldier and friends from Talbert, in native costume, entertained. Felix Castro and Isamu Masuda, Mexican and Japanese, delivered prize winning orations.

Mrs. Jessie Hayden, Americanization instructor at the school, and Mrs. James Ranney, program chairman for the organization, arranged the program.

Fourth grade pupils directed by their teacher, Mrs. Cosens, presented a program of readings and poems and Miss Knox, superintendent of music in the Garden Grove school, played several piano numbers as part of the program.

Mrs. Kelsey, Garden Grove, was speaker of the afternoon. Past presidents, Mrs. Roy Head, Mrs. Edith McMillan, Mrs. George Harding, Mrs. Fay Fuller, Mrs. R. E. Brown, Mrs. Grace Lee Marriott and Mrs. Walter Donovan, were honored guests. A feature of the day was a birthday cake with four lighted candles, honoring national, state and local organizations and founders of the association.

Fishermen interested in formation of the club will meet with the members of the Long Beach Fly and Bait Angling club at the Recreation park clubhouse Feb. 23 to make a study of the work of that club and its casting pool.

Forty sport fishermen of this area are on the list for organization and leaders are planning not only to conduct casting tournaments but to make a study and investigation of conservation in California.

R. G. Miller, well-known authority on casting and maker of hundreds of kinds of flies, ordered the move to form the club here, presided at the meeting. Among others attending were William Schoeffle, Frank and Reuben Catching, Roy and Merville Larson, Fred Grabel, Bud Kerr, George Kesterson, Lurten Hadley and others.

still out walking it off! Who wouldn't be?

Laguna is by no means complete as a perpetual roost for writers. It's a swell place to work for long periods, but you have to get out occasionally and see, feel and do different things, to keep fresh. Harold Channing Wire, until recently, has been temporarily batching it in a little sun-riden cabin near Tonopah, Nev., writing and selling serials and adventure stories. In that atmosphere of isolation he turned out a large parcel of material. Now he's in New York City, working, meeting the editors, and selling.

Ernest Paynter, another Laguna writer who has just returned from New York City, is a staunch believer in the theory that more stories are sold over a cocktail, there, than are sold on merit through agents or by mail. While in the big town he went to several writers' parties with Louis Adams, where he met many of the big-shot writers. The impressions he brought back with him from the home of the literary market were of interest to all writers, and will be discussed later.

More about writers next time.

Then there's Bob Leitford, who has just sold his first novel, "The Corpse That Spoke," to Macaulay's. Selling your first story is a big enough thrill, but the first novel tops them all. When I called, the next day, Bob was

James (Jimmy) Hall

About Our Dons

Sports Roundup

Unfounded rumors to the contrary, Halfback Jimmy Hall is not definitely headed Arizona way in September.

Once described as the "most accomplished blocker for his size I have ever coached here," Gerald Allen (Tex) Oliver, who made football history for the Saints in 1931 and '32, no doubt would like to secure Hall for his border state Wildcats.

Says Jimmy: "I like California—it's a pretty good state. Hall is now at Santa Ana Junior college perfecting credentials to enter university. California at Berkeley?"

Popular indeed is the nickname of the Dons, San Francisco university and Santa Barbara High school also are known by the name, and San Diego baseball patrons want Bill Lane to call his Pacific Coast league club—the former Hollywood Stars now located down south—Dons.

"No more fitting name could be conjured," writes Sports Ed Nelson Fisher in The San Diego Sun.

There is said to be a mild movement under way at the Main street junior college to change Santa Ana's time-worn title from Dons to Padres. They even have a yell that goes "Padres! Padres!" When the Don cheer leader offered this yell at a recent basketball game here, a Chaffey student-rooster wise-cracked, "What are we in—a monastery?"

Let's forget Padres and build those yells around Dons, the gay Spanish name that harkens back to the days of the conquistadors, and is closely associated with "conquerors and noblemen." Yell leaders, please, note.

ART COHN IN PRESS-TELEGRAM: "Of all the half-baked ideas, this week's prize goes to the proposal that Phoenix (Ariz.) High be admitted to the Coast Prep league. Phoenix is only 400 miles away. San Diego has no business in the circuit. Why should Phoenix even be considered? Long Beach kids cannot behave themselves when they go to San Diego. Turning them loose in Arizona would be another form of insanity."

Phoenix isn't being considered for Coast league membership, Art. You just picked up the wrong Santa Ana newspaper.

RUNNING WILD IN AN OPEN FIELD: Earl (Gabby) Homan, who pitched the Dons to the Eastern conference basketball championship in 1932, then lost to Los Angeles for the Southern California flag, is at Santa Barbara State with Ellwood Lindley, another Santa Ana man who is Homan's constant companion. They migrated to Utah two weeks ago when St. Mary's booked Gonzaga and S. F. U. carded Fresno state—both for Sept. 27, at Kezar.

Tuley Sullivan, noted clocker, picks 'em this way for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, a week from Saturday: Diabro, Top Row and Time Supply.

Note to Secretary Ralph Smedley: How about having those Y. M. C. A. backboards repaired before another basketball season gets underway? They are far off balance, and the iron rims hang like a racing saddle on a saw.

When will San Diego High's opponent be named for the C. I. F. basketball eliminations?

Doggone! An old-time bad habit of ours, calling Singling Wood for Time Supply, and vice versa, got away from us Monday in this corner. And it took Chet Congdon, San Juan Capistrano contemporary, to catch us on it. Just to keep the record straight (a la Al Smith), it was Time Supply, not Singling Wood, that we saw win the San Antonio classic at Santa Anita last Saturday.

BEARS HOLD JINX
BERKELEY. (P)—Minus the services of Art Stoefer, high scoring center, the Stanford Indians, leaders of the southern division conference basketball race, face the Bears of California in their third game here tonight. Although California has only the slimmest of chances for the title, the Bears ride on a 13-year jinx over Stanford basketball teams.

Games Today—(Final Round)

Huntington Beach at Garden Grove.

Orange at Anaheim.

Newport Harbor at Tustin.

Laguna Beach at Brea.

Huntington Beach will be gunning for its first Orange County Prep league basketball crown at 8 o'clock tonight.

Coach Leon Miner's smooth Oilers make a short journey north to Garden Grove. An expected victory from John Ward's Argonauts will give the beach boys undisputed claim to the 1936 flag, but a shocking upset will result in a three or four-way tie for first.

Garden Grove boasts a well-balanced club, but one hardly strong enough to halt the rambling Oilers, observers believe. Huntington Beach toppled Orange, 36-23; demolished Newport Harbor, 51-17; smothered Laguna Beach, 58-15; and wrecked Anaheim, 45-36. Garden Grove defeated Valencia, 29-18, and Brea, 17-13, but lost to Anaheim, 69-37, and to Orange, 27-21.

Other finales: Newport Harbor at Tustin; Orange at Anaheim; Laguna Beach at Brea.

DEL JONES STARS IN TIGER WIN

Valencia High school of Placentia contributed the 1936 season's most sensational upset when Clarence E. Bishop's Tigers toppled San Juan Capistrano's Cougars, 46 to 18, in an Orange league basketball finale at Brea last night.

Del Jones, the all-around wizard who also stars in football and baseball, stood out with 14 points at Garden Grove tonight in his first game.

Forward Aciano Avila scored 12 of San Juan Capistrano's 18 points to raise his seasonal league total to 74 points.

Howard (Howdy) Smith of Huntington Beach must cage 14 points at Garden Grove tonight in order to tie the Cougar star.

Smith scored 20 against the Anaheim club that demolished Garden Grove, 69-37, early in the season. Garden Grove was "off" that night, however, as 17-13 and 29-18 victories over the powerful Orange and Valencia fives readily indicate.

Cliff Hargrove and Cruz Rangel, with 10 points, and Arnold Solesbee, with eight, were other Valencia scorers.

Lineups:

Valencia (46) Pos. (18) Capistrano

Rangel (10) F. (12) Avila

Solesbee (8) G. (2) Reeder

Hargrove (10) C. (2) Foster

WOOLEN MILLERS ANNEX BASKETBALL PENNANT

SCOTT'S FIVE ELIMINATED 42 TO 32

Matzen Men Celebrate Second Championship In Two Years

By PAUL WRIGHT

Joy reigned supreme today at the happy home of the Woolen Millers, 627 East Washington avenue, as Manager Quentin Matzen and his cloth manufacturers celebrated their second straight winning of the Commercial league basketball championship.

The Matzen men outsmarted one of the finest fives of the Y. M. C. A.-sponsored loop, Darwin Scott's millers, by a score of 42 to 32 last night, thereby defending their 1935 laurels and clean-sweeping the annual play-off series.

Scott's lost the first game after a hammer-and-tongs affair Tuesday night, 46 to 41.

Rally Second Half

Spotting their rival an early six-point lead, the champions breezed in only two points behind, 12 to 14, at the half, and turned on the heat in the closing 20 minutes for a well-executed rally that netted them a telling advantage, 30-18, over Scott's struggling challengers.

Fred Wiemer, limber-legged guard who is said to have attracted the attention of U. C. L. A. scouts, repeated his Tuesday performance by gathering 15 points, some of them on bewildering shots. An unpleasant habit of disputing many of the official decisions on fouls was the only mar to Wiemer's creditable showing. He left the game on personals mid-way in the final half.

Clever shooting by Vincent McDonald, who plunked in nine points on some of the prettiest field goals of the evening, was a tremendous aid to the Woolen Millers. Joe McChesney was in the ball game from start to finish at guard, and Ed Stephen and Maurice (Buck) White covered well their men at forward.

Malters Fade

Scott's had better luck hitting the rim in the first half than in the second. They "booted" a few second-half set-ups that—if good—might have changed the complexion of the entire battle. . . . Last night's starting lineup of Stephen, White, McDonald, Wiemer and McChesney all played for the Woolen Millers in 1935. . . . The champs were slated to face Ontario in a Southland "Y" game last night, but will cancel this engagement unless Ontario is willing to play early next week. Manager Matzen said. . . . The finale was lean most of the way, but there were 27 fouls, counting out Ed Bragg, Bob Schwarm and Wiemer on personals. . . . Bragg sparked the losing nine with five points.

Lineups:

Woolen Mills (42) Pos. (32) Scott's

Stephen (1) F. (7) McManus

McDonald (9) C. (9) Bragg

Wiemer (15) G. (5) Clark

DEMPESEY AND KEARNS TANGLE BY PROXY AS PROTEGES MEET

CHICAGO, Feb. 14. (P)—Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns, the famous feudists of boxing, will fight it out in the Chicago stadium tonight—by proxy.

Kearns, former manager of Dempsey, will be in the corner of his heavyweight protegee, Hank Bath of Fort Morgan, Colo., with Dempsey glaring at him while seconding his young Jewish heavyweight, Clarence (Red) Burman of Baltimore, in a 10-round battle.

The Dempsey-Kearns feud, existing for almost 13 years, overshadowed the fighters' part in tonight's hostilities, but they will have to do the clouting, and each is ready to win their blood-for-money fight.

The match appears a tossup, although Burman has had more experience because of the better type of fighters he has met in his Eastern campaign.

Meanwhile, hockey players from Canada and the United States put their heads together today to try to figure out a way to keep the English team from taking the Olympic title, which always has gone to Canada in the past.

The only possible way that appeared, as the final round began, was to have the Americans beat the English and then fight it out with the Canadians. That looked like a very tough job considering where most of the English stars learned the trade.

England starts the final series credited with a victory over Canada, scored in the second round; likewise the United States' triumph over Czechoslovakia carries over. Thus Great Britain's team, coached by Percy Nicklin, who piloted the Montreal, N. B., Hawks to two Canadian amateur titles, needs to beat only the United States and Czechoslovakia to clinch the title.

The United States can win in the same way by beating both England and Canada, while a three-way tie in points would result from an American victory over the English and a Canadian triumph over the Americans. That would put the decision up to the scoring records, where Canada has a big edge. No one counts on the Czechs springing an upset.

LOUIS TRAINER 'ILL'

NEW YORK. (P)—When he was hired to train Joe Louis, Jack Blackburn was offered 25 per cent of Joe's contract. But he turned it down for a flat 50 bucks per week. Said he didn't think a cultid fighter had much of a chance. Jack hasn't been the same since. Incidentally, the other heavies may be interested to know Jack thinks it will be two years before Louis reaches his peak.

GARCIA FACES DON BENZOR IN FEATURE

Pomona Champ Tangles With Jimmy Fields; Favorites Billed

Definitely postponing his jump into the professional ranks until after he has a fling at the Olympic boxing tryouts, Pomona's Lupe Cordoza, state amateur bantam champ, steps back into the local flistic spotlight tonight at the Orange County Athletic club.

Lupe faces Jimmy Fields, imported from the mid-west.

Fresh from a thrilling kayo win at Pismo Beach over Bobby Hernandez and not long since winning the Catholic Youth Organization title at San Francisco, Cordoza, according to gossip, will have his hands full trying to dispose of the sensational midwestern scrapper.

Rates a Chance

Press clippings rate the new-comer one of the leading fighters of his weight around Chicago and Kansas City and in one Southern California appearance Fields displayed enough to warrant him a crack at the hard-socking, lightning-punching Basque.

Back in action, too, comes Don Benzor, one of the two lads to defeat Lupe before Orange county fight followers. Benzor is now a stablemate of Lupe. Don meets one of the best lightweights in this section—Al Garcia of Santa Ana. Garcia fought Sailor Bowen in last week's main event and showed plenty of class. Benzor fought as a feather the last time out here, but will scale around 133 for tonight's battle.

Promoter Sam Sampson has arranged another topnotch card, with leading amateur favorites in action.

Capistrano Entry

Henry Waterburg, hard-hitting and rugged San Juan Capistrano light-heavyweight, tackles Al Mutchler of Long Beach; Eddie Ross meets Benny Garcia; Young Terry, Santa Ana light-heavy, who beat Tiger Woods last week, draws Chester Parks; Ken Holliday of Anaheim and Bobby Montgomery renew their feud of last week at the welterweight poundage; Sailor Burlingcourt, whose one-round kayo over Ray Campo, still is the talk of fight fans, meets Pete Aguirre and Eddie Castro tangles with Joe Gomez in a lightweight battle.

FAVOR U. S. C.'S FIVE TONIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14. (P)—University of California at Los Angeles and the Trojans of Southern California are slated to present full strength for the first time this season when they renew basketball hostilities.

Sam Barry's Trojans, battling to stay in the running for the Pacific coast's conference southern division title, are favorites to cop tonight's contest. They'll have a battle, however, if the Bruins offer the same game they put up last week in losing to Stanford, 39 to 35.

The Bruins lost the two previous games this season with Southern California.

STUDENTS TO AID IN LOAN CAMPAIGN

One a penny, two a penny, scholarship fund!

Next week according to annual custom, Santa Ana school students will assemble their pennies to give to the Santa Ana Junior college scholarship fund.

Mrs. Ray Adkinson, Santa Ana council of Parents and Teachers chairman, is supervising the penny drive.

$13,148 Invested
The annual student loan fund report, just released, lists $13,148.47 now invested in the youth of Santa Ana and vicinity who have gone away to complete its education.

Twenty-five loans were made last year, exceeding the previous year's total by 14. The loans totaled $2,214. The Panhellenic society contributed $175 and the A. A. U. W., $75.

Committee Same
E. M. Nealley, student loan fund chairman, reported that last year only half the loan applicants were helped.

The committee personnel is the same as when the fund was started in 1922, and is composed of Mr. Nealley, Mrs. Eleanor Northcross, Mrs. Jennie Tessmann and D. K. Hammond.

Loans up to $300 are made, payable two years after graduation at 4 per cent interest. Altogether, $21,633.97 has been loaned. Crenshaw, Diehl and Wright, certified public accountants, audit the books without charge so every penny given to the loan fund actually goes into the fund.

BOGUS MONEY AIDES ARE SOUGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14. (AP)—New members of a counterfeiting gang which had its base of operations inside San Quentin prison were sought by federal officers today from fingerprints found on equipment to make the bogus currency.

Many other details of the illicit money remained to be learned, chief among them how the money was smuggled from the prison, how much actually was made, and how the work escaped detection. Copper plates, bond paper and other paraphernalia for making bogus $10 federal reserve notes were found in a ceiling cache of the prison's photo-engraving department today. Two of the notes also were discovered, but secret service agents said about 50 bills still were missing.

The equipment was discovered shortly after Daniel R. Wilson, paroled convict and alleged "brains" of the counterfeiting, pleaded guilty here to conspiracy to possess and pass counterfeit money.

Clifford L. Parr of Sacramento, Wilson's brother-in-law, and Thomas Bell of Los Angeles, both paroled prisoners, denied similar charges. Their preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 19.

NEW FILMS AT WEST COAST

Screen version of the stage success, "The Petrified Forest," starring Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, who gave brilliant performances in "Of Human Bondage," opens an engagement today at the West Coast theater, along with a second feature, "Timothy's Quest."

Miss Davis and Howard are supported by a cast which includes Genevieve Tobin, Dick Foran, Humphrey Bogart and Joseph Sawyer. The plot concerns a disillusioned author who awakens to the fact that he can become of some use in the world by dying to give the girl he has suddenly fallen in love with, a chance to realize her thwarted desires. The action takes place in and around the famous petrified forest in Arizona.

A romance saved from ruin by a plucky youngster is the theme of "Timothy's Quest," featuring a cast which includes a new romantic team, Eleanor Whitney and Tom Keene, and Dickie Moore, Virginia Weilder, Sally Martin, Bennie Bartlett and Elizabeth Patterson.

ASSESSORS OF STATE FIGHT REPEAL OF SALES TAX

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 14. (AP)—California assessors voted today to campaign against repeal of the state sales tax at the November election and substitution of a land tax for all other revenues supporting the state government.

Edward Kay, board of equalization advisor to the assessors, told them that approval of the proposed constitutional amendment next fall by the voters would be chaotic.

He said he was alarmed over the appeal the amendment had to the people because few realized that besides repealing the sales tax the amendment would make mandatory the abolition of all taxes on personal property in five years and the substitution of a land tax to bear the entire cost of government.

Kay predicted the result of such an amendment would be the eventual confiscation of all property, driving of the landowner from the state and ruin of the small home owner.

More Miles Means More Money

To The Gallon of Gasoline

LISTEN, FOLKS:

I'm just a mechanic—wear the old overalls but I'm always on the lookout for things to benefit my customers. Some time ago a brother mechanic perfected and patented an invention which he called Rulo, one of the most sensational devices for automobiles ever offered the public. This is what it does. NO MATTER HOW BADLY YOUR MOTOR IS RUNNING NOW, WHEN RULO IS INSTALLED YOU ARE GUARANTEED UP TO 45% MORE GASOLINE MILEAGE. If your valves are sticking, Rulo will seat those valves in a few minutes. It will take the carbon out of your car and keep it out, and you will notice the difference after one trip around the block. It will increase your oil mileage, because it decarbonizes the rings, lubricates them and keeps them from sticking in the ring grooves. Your car will run better from the time you install Rulo. If you will drive over to Hossfield's Garage, Richfield Super-Service Station, 912 N. Main, where I am installing Rulos, I'll put one on your car for $5.00. You drive it for five days and if you like it and it does everything I say it will do, keep it. If it doesn't, drive in and I'll take it off and give you your $5.00 back. I know you'll like Rulo, or I couldn't make this proposition, and I know your car will perform better.

Have you a motorboat? Think what Rulo will do for it! Listen to KMPC every noon—KRKD at 4 p. m. It takes only a few minutes to install Rulo. Remember the address, Hossfield's Garage, 912 N. Main St. I'm here every week day and all day long, too, but I won't work on Sunday.

tint to their skin? That's not from sitting in a cafe on a Sunday afternoon. Then look at some of those jaws. See how the lower jaw looks sort of loose, as if it seems to hang down a bit? That's a reaction. It shows they've been clenching them. Take a look at their eyes. They're open, but they have the look of not seeing much of anything. They've had it tough, all right. Their eyes are glazed."

"You know a lot?"

A brief pause, then the veteran continued:

"When men get scared they get tense and things inside them solidify. Functions stop. Secretions dry up. When you hear a shell coming straight at you, you hold everything, even your breath. You can't help it. That's why those fellows' faces look grey. Their skin is dry. So are their eyes, and from lack of sleep, too. That's why they look glazed. For some reason their jaws seem to relax first. Every time a man comes out of the line something happens inside him like the mainspring busting in a watch. Besides, I happen to know those fellows have taken a terrible pounding up in the Souchez valley."

"You know a lot, don't you?"

"No, not so much. I just keep my ears and eyes open, that's all. But I do know for a fact that they've had it tough because that's my regiment and I met a sergeant down at railhead who'd been wounded up there and he told me about it."

"What regiment is it?"

"I don't know that I ought to tell you. You ask so many questions you're probably a spy. That's the 181st Regiment of the line—or what's left of it."

"Say, that's the regiment I'm ordered to join. Let's follow along. We'll save ourselves a 15-kilometre hike to Villers and back again. Come on, grab your stuff."

"Hey there, wait a minute. There's no hurry. Let me handle this and we'll be all right."

"Funny, I saw your numerals but somehow I didn't take it in. Excitement of going up to the front and all that, I suppose. . . . Say, my name is Duval. What's yours? Where are you coming from, anyway? Hospital?"

"No. First-Class Private Langlois. Late of Paradise, otherwise known as leave."

Veteran Meets Recruit

The two men shook hands, looked each other quickly and deeply in the eye for the first time, then smiled as their glances disengaged. The regiment in horizon blue—at that distance the blue of a horizon upon which a storm is gathering—was already passing out of sight and merging into the poplars which lined the road. The sound of their tired, uneven tread had moved away with them too.

"Well, what'll we do?" said Duval.

"Somebody said that a good soldier is one who knows when to disobey. He was right, and I'm a good soldier. Now we're ordered to join our regiment at Villers. But they've apparently just come from there, so we'll save ourselves a 30-kilometre hike for nothing. But we won't let it off after that either. Got any money? All right. Then we'll go back down to that bistro we passed at the crossroads and have a couple of drinks and spend some time. They'll tell us there which way the regiment went and we'll start out so as to catch up with them in time for evening grub. Let's get going."

They heaved their packs on, slung their rifles, and clambered over to the road. Turning to the left, they moved off in the wake of the regiment, taking their time and exchanging bits of information about themselves. Langlois learnt that his companion worked in a Belfort bank and lived with his parents in the suburbs. His class was just beginning to be detailed to the front, and he had somehow got left behind by the detail ordered to the 181st. That was why he was alone. It was a complicated story of confused orders and Langlois didn't pay much attention to it. Duval, glancing involuntarily at Langlois' ribbons, said he hoped he would win a medal, wondered what the chances were of his getting a commission when he was a year or so older. Langlois told him the chances were good if you weighed them on the basis of time and officer casualties. Duval himself, he said, didn't want a commission. He had enough to think about looking after his own skin without worrying about a lot of other men too. He was an engineer, he told Duval, and added derisively that was no doubt the reason for his being in the infantry. Duval pointed out that Joffre was an engineer, but Langlois only laughed.

Orchestration of Front

A thin rain began to fall and the conversation soon died out. Langlois asked himself why rain always seemed to put a stop to talk on the march. He welcomed the silence and used it to enjoy the relief of finding himself walking away from the front. Duval, on the other hand, was rather disappointed with the direction they were taking, mildly resentful of it. He had heard that the sound of the distant gunfire. At last, he reflected, he had heard the noise of war—The Orchestration of the Western Front. The phrase stood in his mind's eye, capitals and all, just as he had seen it in a headline. Soon he would see war. His romanticism and inexperienced insulated him from the thought that he might feel it, too.

They walked along. Already both men had the feeling that they were pals. Langlois wondered how soon this friendship, abruptly begun, would, like so many others, be as abruptly ended. The question came aimlessly into his head and he let it dissolve there. As soon as he had a chance he sent his wife a note to tell her that his regiment was going to the rear for a rest and that she could count on his being out of danger for a week or 10 days more.

"They're marching pretty sloppy," said the younger onlooker. "So would you if you had been through what they have," the older soldier said.

It was a morning in early spring and the shower had passed over. The countryside was refreshed by the rains and the landscape seemed just on the point of breaking out of its gloom. The two men stopped to light cigarettes, then went on again, taking their time and finding an unexpected pleasure in doing so. They had plenty of time anyway.

Rest . . . My Feet . . . Rest

The regiment came to the crossroads, made a quarter circle round the cafe which stood there, and swung off the main road to the right. Some of the men lifted their gaze from the calves of the men ahead of them and looked at the Cafe du Carrefour. Their interest in it was not an abstract one, for it was the first house they had seen in three weeks that was intact; more than that, it was a drinking place, forerunner of similar drinking places, farther on, among which they hoped to end their march.

"We're almost there," said Didier.

A light rain began to come down, and the talk, which had bubbled up suddenly at the turn off the main road, began to dwindle away. The men lowered their heads to keep the rain off their faces, then hunched their shoulders to keep it from going down their necks. Little waves of private verbal sighs beat up upon the lieutenant's ears: "Rest . . . my feet . . . rest . . . what a march . . . sleep . . . rest . . ."

"Their resistance is certainly low," the lieutenant said to himself. "So's their morale. But who can blame them?"

"They'll have to give us 10 days out of the line at least, I should think."

"At least 10, sir," the sergeant agreed.

The regiment passed through a hamlet and over a stream, then up a wooded hill where the mud lay rutted on the road. Men stumbled, slipped, jostled each other, and swore, and swore, and the ranks lost what little formation they had had. The wood ended abruptly and neatly on the brow of the hill and they came out onto a low plateau of fields. Voices broke out behind the lieutenant:

"Here we are at last."

"Interesting ruins, no doubt."

"Ruins nothing. Look! The houses have roofs."

"Then they're not for us."

Closed Like Accordion

The village on the floor of the valley was to be their village; the houses with the roofs were to be their houses. The pace quickened as the men slithered down the road to a destination finally in sight. What with the slope of the road and its sliminess, the men were going almost at a run in their eagerness to get there. Then suddenly the mass of blue buckled, closed up like an accor-

Model Home to Open Sunday Here; 'Housewife's Dream'

Any housewife's dream!

That's an accurate description of the new Spanish stucco home just completed at 1916 North Flower street by Louis Braasch, builder.

The model home, into which the owner will move next week, is gay with red-tiled roof above its creamy walls, and makes a fitting addition to the architectural beauty of North Flower street.

Sunday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., visitors will be permitted to go through the new deluxe home.

Patio Entrance

Incorporating many of the "pet" ideas of Mr. Braasch, the house is entered through a low-walled patio which the owner plans to plant with cacti.

Two book alcoves, a large tiled fireplace with gas kindler, high arched ceiling and a huge square front window make the living room especially attractive.

Throughout the home, hand-painting on the walls and a good deal of tile add effectiveness.

Turquoise tile outlines the roomy yellow kitchen. Everywhere, closets and drawers provide an abundance of room for linens, bedding and extra paraphernalia. A red cedar storeroom is in the second bedroom. Dressing-closets adjoin the master bedroom, and the master bathroom is a jewel in beige and black with tiling and alcove bath. A shower bath is off the kitchen.

Other Conveniences

Equipment for messless shoe-shining including a "boot jack" are in a compact built-in steel cabinet in the service porch. Dining room, breakfast room and den are "also present."

Outside is a roomy garage with door which swings overhead when opened. Upstairs is a playroom with pool table and room for other equipment. Knotty pine is the finish throughout the inside of the garage.

The attractive home is surrounded by walnut trees on one side and oranges behind the back yard.

The basement has a furnace, instantaneous hot water heater and plenty of cupboard space for jams and preserves.

time we come out of our next trip into the trenches? (He thought for a long time, staring at his letter without seeing it, then decided to risk the phrase, so filled with implications.) "I hope it will be a girl. No more now. I'll write again soon. All my love, my darling."

He sealed the letter and put it away in his pocket-book, intending to mail it at the regimental postoffice that evening. "I hope it will be a girl," he wondered if the censor would consider that as evidence of defeatist tendencies. He wondered what his wife might read into that hope, what conclusions she might draw. COMMA, BACK IN LAW, ENDS LIQUOR DISCUSSION

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 11. (AP)—The battle of the comma has been settled.

Texas liquor law authorized local governments to prohibit the sale of liquors within 300 feet "of any church, school or educational institution."

Some argued the comma wasn't there—that the law simply said "church school."

The secretary of state formally installed the comma, omitted in early reprints of the law.

SRA TO SHIFT 600 CASES TO WPA

Relief Agency Forced to Make Drastic Cuts in Operating Costs

Faced with the necessity of further drastic cuts in operating expenses, the Orange county State Relief administration today inaugurated a drive to transfer 600 additional cases to the Works Progress administration within the next 10 days.

Further reductions also will be made in the already slim administrative personnel, Terrence E. Halloran, supervisor, said today. Cuts have reduced the number of the administrative force to 47, and it is expected this number will be reduced to approximately 40.

Case Load 1925
At present, Mr. Halloran said, SRA is carrying a case load of 1625, of which 600 are eligible and certified for WPA work.

Decision to cut expenses here was the result of advice from the state offices, in which Acting State Relief Administrator C. I. Schottland ordered economies due to the necessity of holding total relief expenditures to $1,500,000 a month for the next four months.

Change Pay Periods
Mr. Schottland, the Associated Press said, announced that pay periods for relief clients and administrative personnel are being changed from a weekly to a fortnightly basis. This permits closing of all accounting and disbursing offices except those in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Fewer than 4000 remain on the administrative payroll for the state, as compared with 14,000 at the peak last August, Mr. Schottland said.

JACKIE MCGUIRE'S RADIO INTERVIEW

Jackie McGuire's parents have a radio interview on the "Keep Smiling" program KVOE (KREG), Tuesday, 6 p. m., Dec. 17, 1935.

Good Evening Friends:
Every Tuesday at this hour, we are pleased to bring you a Keep Smiling broadcast, presented by Doctors Workman, two of Orange county's leading chiropractors, who maintain one of the three best-equipped chiropractic offices in the state of California at 714 South Main street, in Santa Ana.

This evening, we believe you are to hear one of the most interesting of this entire series of broadcasts which have been made over a period of years. Dr. James Workman has invited Mr. and Mrs. George McGuire to the studio this evening and will interview them before the microphone.

In my interview this evening, I have the extreme pleasure of presenting to you, the "parents" of Jackie McGuire. Most of you, undoubtedly have read the highlights of Jackie McGuire's case record, last Friday evening.

This case of 4-year-old "Jackie McGuire" has become famous, and much talked about in the past few days. His rapid recovery was seemingly a miracle. The point I am particularly interested in, is that it proves the possibilities of future "chiropractic." It proves that the principle is correct, and it also proves to the profession, that there is much to be learned, and plenty of work for the research minds of our profession, to search for that something, so that the success we have had in this case of Jackie McGuire, that it may be applied to a higher percentage.

Tonight you will hear the voices of Jackie's "parents," also you will hear Jackie say "hello!"
Q. Mrs. Geo. McGuire, are you the mother of Jackie McGuire?
Ans. Yes.

Q. How old is Jackie?
Ans. 4 and 1/2 years.

Q. How long has your son Jackie been ill?
Ans. Since April 1, 1935, about eight and one-half months.

Q. What was the general state of Jackie's health prior to April, 1935?
Ans. Apparently all right.

Q. Has Jackie had any severe fall or accident?
Ans. Yes, had an auto accident a year ago last winter.

Q. What was the nature of the automobile accident?
Ans. The car went over the embankment, due to brake locking on a curve.

Q. What was Jackie's condition after the accident?
Ans. He limped.

Q. How long has Jackie had this condition diagnosed as Bright's Disease or Dropsy?
Ans. About six months.

Q. What was done for this condition?
Ans. Hot packs and medicine, and later on he was tapped.

Q. How many times was he tapped?
Ans. Six times.

Q. How far apart were the intervals of the last tapplings?
Ans. Ten days.

Q. During this six months extreme abdominal bloating, what was the largest waist measure you know of?
Ans. 31 1/2 inches.

Q. What was his heaviest weight, during this time?
Ans. 47 pounds.

Q. Mrs. McGuire, how did you happen to come to my office?
Ans. My brother, Frank Holliday, talked to me about the benefits of chiropractic and brought me to your office.

Duke of York, Heir Presumptive to English Throne, in Spotlight

The Duke of York, made heir presumptive to the throne of Great Britain by the death of his father, George V., is shown here in three typical poses.

LONDON, Feb. 13. (AP)—King George's death has turned the spotlight upon the quiet Duke of York who as heir presumptive to the British throne emerges as a new world personality.

Even the British know little about him. Shy, home-loving, retiring, this prince of the House of Windsor has all his life deliberately, whenever possible, kept himself from public attention.

He deputized for his father at public functions when duty demanded but always arrived without fanfare, said his piece and departed.

Man of Varied Talents
Now, on all sides, the public is reconsidering Albert Frederick Arthur George, Duke of York, vice-admiral of the royal navy, lieutenant of the air corps.

Eighteen months younger than King Edward, he is "Bertie" to those who know him well.

Remarkably diverse interests are attributed to him. He knits, is interested in the welfare of working people, can wield a pick, is a good sailor, can cast iron plates in a smelting factory, and stays home whenever he gets a chance.

He likes the movies, reads detective stories, enjoys the harp music of his wife, hunts, golfs and, by sheer force of will has overcome stuttering.

Under Fire in World War

Tutored in early life by the same tutor employed by Prince Edward, he and the king were put through military drill by the same pipe major of the Scots Guards and by the same sergeant major of the Coldstream Guards.

Then King George sent him to the naval training school. There for four years Albert studied history, navigation, general subjects, went for a cruise, learned to play football, became a long distance runner, and when the World war began, went to sea.

He took part in the battle of

Members of the executive board gave a play entitled "The Ideal Birthday Cake." Mrs. Robert B. McAulay, program chairman, reported on findings of a questionnaire on "Home Study." Tea was served by a committee composed of Mrs. George Horton, chairman; Mrs. Vernon Shippee and Mrs. Cosie Crofoot.

COREY TO SPEAK AT NEWPORT EBELL DINNER

NEWPORT BEACH.—Arthur Corey, assistant superintendent of Orange county schools, will deliver an address, "Abecedabra and the Dragons," at a public dinner to be given by the Newport Beach Ebbl club at the clubhouse this evening.

A large attendance is expected at the dinner, which is sponsored by the ways and means committee. Mesdames R. P. Tillotson, Ida P. Naylor, M. A. Gaskill, P. S. Castleman and S. A. Meyer are on the committee.

YOUNG EVANGELIST TO SPEAK AT CHURCH

COSTA MESA.—Charles E. Jaynes, 34-year-old preacher from Detroit, Mich., will deliver three sermons at the Costa Mesa Women's clubhouse Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

The wee lad, believed to be the youngest preacher in the world, is brought here by the Rev. George L. Grant, local minister of the Four-square Gospel church. His father, the Rev. Charles E. Jaynes, sr., himself a minister of the gospel, and a nurse are his traveling companions and will accompany him here.

The lad can quote entire chapters of scripture from the Bible, sings in Spanish, Indian and African dialects and has a little knowledge of the German, Japanese and Spanish languages.

YACHT CLUB READY FOR RANXER

NEWPORT BEACH.—Many are the changes taking place at the Newport Harbor Yacht club as officials start plans to accommodate an anticipated throng of Corinthians at the popular rendezvous during the coming yachting season. The clubhouse will be enlarged and redecorated at an estimated cost of more than $3500.

Harry B. Marsh assumed duties of manager of the club this week, and Mrs. Marsh will be hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Marsh will also have charge of the club dining room. L. C. Swales, who has been acting manager of the club since last year's yachting season, will continue in the capacity of port captain, a position which he has held for several years.

John Banks, aged colored steward, who has been in charge of the dining salon and kitchen for many years, is gone. Geler Banks has been retained as chef. The large ballroom and dining salon will be widened 12 feet, and the forward deck extended 12 feet further over the bay. The business office is being remodeled and enclosed with plate glass window front.

Both the ballroom and the dining salon will be decorated in blue and white, the kitchen in white with touches of mandarin red. Workmen will redecorate the cabins in pastel shades.

Hundreds of yachting folk are expected to attend the opening of the yachting season and dedication of the $200,000 measure harbor, which will be held as a joint event in May. Many other events of interest to the Corinthian elite will be the Pacific Coast regatta, the Blue regatta and other regattas scheduled for the summer season.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh were formerly with the Wrigley estate on Catalina Island, and came from their home in Long Beach to take over the management of the club.

One Good Laugh Beats A Dozen Frowns

By FRANCES TIPTON LONG
Noted Authority on Charm and Personality

Without humorists, this world would be a pretty dull and uninteresting place in which to live.

Whistler, the great artist and etcher, whose portrait of his mother appears on the Mother's day postage stamps issued last year, had a very active sense of humor. One day his Venetian landlady placed her goldfish bowl on the window ledge. From the window above, Whistler caught the goldfish with a hook and line, fried them nicely on both sides, and then returned them to their bowl. Later, he answered a knock on his door and found an excited landlady exclaiming, "Oh, Signor Whistler, come quick. The sun has fried my little Giovanni and Maria."

Perhaps Whistler's sense of humor was perverted, as is often the case with practical jokers, although he did buy his good landlady some more goldfish. But, in any case, he didn't look upon the world with blue glasses. There was nothing morbid, nothing sour, about him. He always found the silver lining in the darkest cloud, something to smile about no matter how distressing the outlook.

Is it any wonder that Whistler

Robert Woolsey must not be forgotten when we are considering humorists, says Frances Tipton Long.

charm of personality. I really think it is more important than physical beauty.

I know a woman in an eastern hospital who is slowly dying of an incurable disease. She knows that her days are numbered, that soon she will leave the bright flowers and the sunshine behind forever, yet she faces the short time left to her with a cheerful smile, an optimistic attitude and an unquenchable sense of humor. Her personality immediately impresses her visitors as utterly charming.

The Doughnut or the Hole?
After all, when you meet a pessimistic person, a taciturn, morose individual, an irritable man or woman, someone who always sees the hole and never the doughnut, the impression such a person makes on you is never favorable and certainly not charming. You wouldn't go out of your way to help him, you wouldn't co-operate with him; in fact, you prefer to have as little to do with him as possible.

Just as other people impress you, so you impress them—either favorably or unfavorably, depending upon your development of charm. Do you interest people? Do you make friends easily—and keep them? Are you successful socially and in business? If not, look to our sense of humor. Perhaps a change in this one thing alone will lift you out of the unhappy, unsuccessful class and make life more interesting, happy and eventful for you.

MUDDY TRACK LIKELY FOR S. A. DERBY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14. (AP)—With another week-day program on tap today, race followers centered interest on the second running of the $25,000 added Santa Anita derby tomorrow.

Weather prospects continued to intrigue horsemen on the eve of the $25,000 derby. After a week of heavenly bombardment, Santa Anita's strip was a joltily, and small were the chances it would dry up before post time tomorrow.

Most of the DeRoy candidates took a holiday yesterday. Little Miracle, of the Nightingale stable, being about the only one to venture through a sloppy workout. He ran a mile in 1:51.

He did and Valevictorian, Mrs. Silas B. Mason's chief candidate, Anthony Pelletieri's Tennen, P. M. Pike's Jubilee Jim, The Milky Way Farm's The Fighter and Norman Church's Valiant Fox remained in the favorite list.

Galsac, the Greenlee entry, is a doubtful starter because of the probable condition of the track, Trainer Bill Brennan said.

Racing Notes

By The Associated Press
Six stakes, headed by the $5000 derby consolation stakes, will be decided at Tropical Park's spring meeting, March 10-April 4. The consolation stakes, the first running of which was won by De Witt Page's Mantagna last year, is designed for 3-year-olds which have not won a race of $10,000 this year. The distance has been increased from one and one-sixteenth miles to one and one-eighth miles. It will be run on the closing day.

As the result of riding four winners in two days, three of them Wednesday, Don Meade has pulled up into a tie with Johnny Longden for jockey honors among the veterans at Hialeah park. They each got one yesterday and lead the field with 13 victories apiece. In the apprentice division, C. Phillips and M. L. Fallon are showing the way with 10 triumphs each.

SAN FRANCISCO BOXER DIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14. (AP) Lorenzo (Pete) Pedro, 21-year-old professional fighter, was booked on technical charge of manslaughter today after the death of his sparring partner, Eddie Kimm, 24.

Kimm died yesterday in a hospital after collapsing in the ring from a blow under the heart. The two San Franciscans were both wearing the big 12-ounce training gloves.

Boxing Inspector Willie Ritchie administered first aid and called a doctor who attempted artificial respiration when Kimm failed to respond.

The pair were boxing before a crowd of 300 who came to Ryan's gymnasium to watch Kingfish Levinsky of Chicago train for his fight tomorrow night with Phil Brubaker, Dinuba, Calif.

GRID CHANGES TO BE FEW

PALM SPRINGS, Feb. 14. (AP)—Resolved to keep the game of football virtually unchanged, the National football rules committee will open its three-day annual meeting here tonight.

"Cut out the slow whistle and go home," was the advice handed the gridiron judiciary by Robert C. Zuppke, University of Illinois coach.

This seemed to be the accepted opinion of the official committee, too.

A few minor additions to the code, suggested by the country's football mentors, will be given consideration by the rule makers, including:

1. Use of a pistol to signify the end of a game.
2. Use of three officials instead of four by small institutions, if both parties so desire.
3. Numbering players on both front and back.
4. Discontinuance of the slow whistle—which the coaches had asked be given a year's trial.
5. Discontinuance of a first down penalty against the team which runs into a kicker. Coaches have asked that the down remain the same after the infliction of the customary five-yard penalty.

Eleven members constitute the official rules committee, but several other football men are here in an advisory capacity.

LIONS, TEXAS TO MEET

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14. (AP)—Loyola University and Texas Tech continue gridiron hostilities this fall, meeting in the American Legion-sponsored Armistice day game in the Coliseum.

They get him, Linus Frey will be shifted to second base.

Eddie Ainsmith, the old catcher, is tuning up his pipes for another season of umpiring in the Southern Association. Oct. 24 is open on Southern Methodist's grid schedule. Who wants it? Wild Bill Mehlhorn has regained his long lost putting touch and is red hot on the Coast.

When you ask Mrs. Helen Willis Moody if she'll play in this year's nationals, she puts on the w. k. poker face. But if you can get odds she will not, grab 'em.

Ernie Lanigan, the International league's demon press agent, was baseball's first real statistician. Although only 27, Mel Ott has just signed his 12th major league contract.

Mike Kelly of Minneapolis says 1936 will be baseball's best year since 1929. Here's hoping. Clark Griffith must believe so, too, with a $500,000 price tag on Buddy Myers. New York scribes can't stop talking about what would have happened if Charlie Retzlaff had landed that first right he tossed at Embalmer Louis.

Richmond papers say the real reason Ken Overlin didn't go through with that bout with Oscar Rankin was a row with Max Waxman, Jack Dempsey's vice president in charge of fighters.

Overlin said he had a cold. George Perry, who press agents for the Yanks, is an old vaudeville song and dance man and always helps the baseball writers polish up the skits for their annual dinner.

By MINA SHAFFER

Since I have become interested in poetry, it has been my good fortune to meet many fine California poets, and I would like to introduce them to the readers of The Santa Ana Journal.

At the head of the list I want to place Beulah May, of Santa Ana; poet, sculptor, scholar and worthwhile friend.

Poetry lovers will find much joy in keeping a scrap book of the work of contemporary poets.

THE BALLAD OF THE MOUSE AND THE BISHOP
(From "Warp and Woof" by Beulah May.)
Down the steps of the Bishop's palace
A church mouse pattered, dry and thin,
His gray coat buttoned tight to his chin
And his black eyes twinkled and shone with malice.

For he had eaten all of the cheese
Stored on the sideboard among the plate,
And now the prelate's dinner must wait.
Though the steward came with his jangling keys,

There was no cheese in the press at all,
None in cupboard nor cellar nor stair,
Scant use for the cook to mumble and swear
Or the Bishop to storm about in the hall.

"I'm tired of hymn books," the gray mouse said,
"And candle dripping scraped from the floor.
I've sniffed for crumbs till my nose is sore,
The mice in the church should be better fed."

The choir was present, the parish too,
The verger pulled till he ached, at the bell,
But the Bishop was late and cross as well
While a lean mouse slept in the Amen Pew.

Warneke Worried About His Salary Flipper

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 14. (AP) Lon Warneke, right hand pitching ace of the Chicago Cubs, is worried about his salary flipper.

The arm that went "dead" in the fifth game of the world series last October still isn't what it should be, he said here today.

"I don't know whether it is going to be all right or not," the tall lad who put Mt. Ida, Ark., on the baseball map, added. "Sometimes when I wake up in the morning the arm is numb. That passes away in a while and it feels all right. There is no soreness, no twinge of pain when I exercise it."

He is en route to Los Angeles where he will join the Cubs later for spring training.

HEAVIES TANGLE AT HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14. (AP)—Heavyweights headline the Legion fight card tonight, Joe Bauer of Cleveland, Ohio, and Frank Walulis, former University of Washington football player, meeting in the 10-round main event.

Both fighters have recent reverses to overcome. Bauer lost a decision to the highly touted Phil Brubaker in San Francisco, and Walulis lost to Art Lasky here several weeks ago.

Implements Manufactured Here Leaving Their Marks In Soils of Many Nations

By ELLEN SNEBLEY

Santa Ana makes its mark in the soils of virtually every country in the world.

Shiny farm implements from the Towner Manufacturing Company travel on ocean liners to Europe and Asia, the Philippines, the Canal Zone and Mexico.

Strong steel blades from Santa Ana break the hard ground wherever tropical or semi-tropical conditions render less strong eastern-made implements inadequate. India and the Orient have "priced" the local products without, however, yet purchasing.

Howard Rapp, who has succeeded Mr. and Mrs. Fred Towner in operating the local firm, is emphatic about using only United States made materials for the various tractor-pulled implements his plant turns out.

When employees join up with the Towner workshop they usually stay. Among 13 of the 20 men on the average payroll, 10 years is the average length of service at the plant.

Most of the work in the roomy plant is interchangeable, which prevents monotony. Huge lathes turn out mechanical gadgets, other machinery punches holes in big slabs of metal. Two men with metal helmets work in a brilliantly lighted electric welding room, and three blacksmiths who might have shod horses in another decade work over neat gas forges.

The late Mr. Towner turned from blacksmithing to manufacturing and laid a firm foundation for the present world-wide business activity of the plant which bears his name.

ITALIANS WIN 3 AFRICAN BATTLES

Ethiopians Claim 650
Fascists Captured
On South Front

ROME, Feb. 14. (AP)—Three sharp battles on the Southern Ethiopian front, embracing two Italian victories and one defeat, were reported today in the official Italian war communiqué.

The advances, relayed from the southern front by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander-in-chief on the northern front, said:

"On the Somaliland front, near Ballei on the Gestro river, our detachment surprised an Ethiopian detachment retreating from Lama Scillindi and destroyed it, capturing arms almost entirely of British manufacture.

"On the Dawa river, our auto truck column attacked an enemy detachment near the wells of Bulbu, Dibidi, 80 kilometers west of Neghelli, inflicted losses and dispersed them.

"Considerable Ethiopian forces Feb. 10 attacked our observation post of 60 Dubats at Curati, northwest of Gerlogubi, in Ogaden province and overwhelmed them after the most stubborn resistance.

"On the Eritrean front there is nothing important."

650 ITALIANS CAPTURED ETHIOPIANS CLAIM

ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 14. (AP)—Ras Desta Dintu, commander of the Ethiopian forces in the south, reported to the government today from Sidamo that 650 Eritrean troops of the Italian forces had surrendered to him.

He stated that 300 more "announced their intention of surrendering, but it seems they took the wrong road and it is feared they are lost."

Old Bandit Cave, Used By Rebel Bandoleros In 1857, Near San Juan Capistrano

By ALFONSO YORBA

Hidden in the fastness of Rancho Niguil near San Juan Capistrano and seen by few living men is a well concealed natural cave, its stone ceiling black with the soot of many fires, its silent walls guardians of secrets many men would like to know.

Here it was that the fierce young bandolero, Juan Flores, and his followers lay concealed during their brief insurrection of 1857. In this mountain fastness they planned their daring raids and massacres, and here they brought their treasures for distribution.

Once it was a huge cave with a rock ceiling 10 feet high and more than five feet thick, with two erosion-formed natural vents or chimneys. It was about 40 feet wide and more than 30 in depth, with a stream of fresh water which entered a fissure in the rear and ran along the north wall and out the small arch like doorway four or five feet square.

Damaged by Quake
But alas! Earthquake and erosion have done their work and today the central portion has fallen in, leaving the chimneys and watercourse on one side and a much smaller but still extensive cave on the other.

A San Juaneno Indian, one of Flores' band, led the bandoleros to the cave, long used by the native Indians of Niguil, and soon it became the seat of the bloody Juan Flores insurrection of 1857.

Beginning in simple banditry, Flores, even as Murrieta before him, soon acquired a considerable private army of dissatisfied peons, and dreamed of liberating this late department of the Mexican republic from its new American conquerors and restoring it to the mother country.

Raid Capistrano
Killing and plundering the foreigners and aiding the poorer Californians, Flores' band soon became known by its watchword "Manila!" and increasing numbers of dispossessed young rancheros flocked to their mountain cave in

RULE DEFIED BY PARTY LEADERS

Socialists Demanding Stern Action, Raid Headquarters

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)
PARIS, Feb. 14.—The outlawing of France's Royalist Brigade, "The King's Henchmen," provoked short-lived disorders and aroused apprehension today over possible consequences of the ban, virtually defied by the most militant Royalists.

Premier Albert Sarraut, whose decree dissolving all militant Royalist organizations in France was signed by President Albert Lebrun and promulgated today, took command of the situation in his capacity as minister of the interior.

Fears Rioting
Police searched the headquarters of the "Action Francaise"—the Royalist party, the "marching wing" of which is known as "The King's Henchmen"—but Sarraut indicated he was reluctant to order arrest of the leaders, for fear of re-kindling the flames of rioting which flared two years ago.

The premier confronted at the same time Socialist demands for stern action against Royalist leaders because of an attack yesterday on Leon Blum, veteran statesman and Socialist leader, the immediate cause of the Royalist dissolution decree.

May Down Government
The Socialists were powerful enough to overthrow the government in the chamber of deputies if they failed to obtain satisfaction.

The Royalists, on the other hand, offered virtual defiance to the decree, which meant any public demonstration would be broken up and its participants prosecuted.

"They can't disband our idea or prevent our organizing our young men to sell our newspaper," asserted Charles Murras, one of France's greatest historians, and Leon Daudet, son of the immortal Alphonse, leaders of the Action Francaise.

Socialists raided the Royalist headquarters in the 14th arrondissement last night and fought with "The King's Henchmen" until police broke up the battle. No serious injuries were reported, and no arrests made.

On the historic Place de L'Alma, police quickly put down a Royalist demonstration, arresting seven persons.

DROP GEORGE RAFT FROM PAYROLL IN STUDIO SQUABBLE

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14. (AP)—Paramount Studio executives announced today that George Raft has been dropped from the payroll and will be replaced by Fred MacMurray in the star role of what was to have been his next picture.

Disagreement developed two days ago when Raft protested the assignment of Teddy Tetzlaff, cameraman, to the picture.

Through a spokesman, the actor said he and Tetzlaff "did not get along," and accused the cameraman of being the special favorite of Carole Lombard, blonde actress who was to have played opposite Raft in the picture.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14. (AP) Democratic circles reported today President Roosevelt would give Senator William G. McAdoo control of his California delegation on the May 5 primary ballot.

State Senator Culbert L. Olsen of Los Angeles, state party chairman, these sources said, would be frozen out of the picture by the McAdoo group.

Cantando club's concert at the Orange Union High school auditorium next Tuesday night will have a glamorous guest soloist in the person of Blythe Taylor Burns, shown above, who has ever found an enthusiastic audience for her appearances in Los Angeles.

So sensational was her success as soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra under Otto Klemperer in April, 1934, that the famous conductor asked orchestra directors that she have a return engagement as soloist for several important works during the 1934-35 season. She recently sang with the Philharmonic orchestra, Feb. 6 and 7 when "Midsummer Night's Dream" was presented. She has broadcast twice weekly over KFI for some time.

Centering the table at which Miss Ellison sat was a miniature bride and bridegroom. With the honoree were Mrs. Edith Ellison, her mother, and Mrs. Amy Hoffmaster, mother of her fiancé.

A bride's cake had been decorated by Mrs. Minnie Norman for the occasion. Cakes were served with tea and coffee.

Introductory remarks, Mrs. E. H. Prince, chairman of the day, reviewed the state's history and background, before presenting Mrs. C. F. Bennett who gave the paper of the day.

A 1 o'clock luncheon preceded the business session. Hostesses were Mrs. Prince, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Bowers and Mrs. M. C. Williams.

Mary Stoddard One in Need of Guidance in Love Writes This Query to Us

By MARY STODDARD
When two people decide to marry, shouldn't they be guided by their heads rather than their hearts?
That's a many-sided question. It seems to me there should be a well-balanced portion of both common sense and real love behind the truly successful marriage.

If only the material side of such a union is concerned, unless the parties to the marriage contract are intensely mercenary, they will find that an absence of that elusive thing called love or sentiment will make for a state of boredom.

On the other hand, the purely emotional marriage is apt to land on the rocks of disillusionment.

This query is put to us by one of our readers. It should prove an interesting subject for those of us who endeavor to figure out just what the truly happy, successful marriage is based upon.

The letter follows:
Dear Miss Stoddard: Don't think in this business of marriage one has to follow his head rather than his heart?

Dear Miss Stoddard: Don't you emotions lead them for a time—it's most thrilling; dancing then seems inspirational; companionship gives that divine thrill of well-being and self-assurance. That peculiar something in his voice thrills, or maybe it's the feel of his strong arms, or that faint blending of cigaret smoke and shaving soap or just his strong manliness. Whatever it is, it does spell romance. Heavenly is the word to describe it.

How long would it be before such ecstasy turned to just earthliness—disillusionment, boredom, dejection and all the other evils that would follow such a state of mind?

Isn't certainty and the mild emotions attendant with it better than thrilling uncertainty? Knowing several boys from early school days and going on with them to higher things and there meeting others of the same class does make one pretty sure of them. What if the intense joy of being with them is absent? (Maybe I haven't met the right one yet?)

Herbert Hoover and his fiancé went against all censure when they were young. They had the thrilling satisfaction of fighting through.

FROM ONE WHO NEEDS GUIDANCE.

Ace Of Hearts Discloses Betrothal

It was just another bridge club meeting Wednesday night at the home of Miss Nellie Hinton until Miss Jeannette Roby found that the act of hearts she held in her hand bore the words "Ted and Nellie—Spring."

The hostess told her friends that she planned to be married sometime in the early spring to Theodore F. Newcomb of Seattle, Wash.

Valentine decorations had been used in the tallest candies, prizes and the dessert course. The effect was modified to include a bridal note by the centerpiece of mirrors which reflected sprays of white hyacinths, tied with white ribbons.

Prizes went to Miss Marge Krone and Miss Marjory An Mather.

Others present were the Misses Winifred Triplett, Pauline Riley, Elsie Siemsen and Mrs. Wilson Seacord, Santa Ana; Miss Ruby Aabel, Miss Jennie Clark and Miss Ruby Miller of Garden Grove and Miss Evelyn Williams of Orange.

The Thinkers

Wherein women of the community express their views on topics of particular interest to women

Do you think the idea of school spirit can be carried too far?

Mrs. T. P. McKee: "I think there is some danger, particularly in the colleges, of commercializing it. You certainly need some to help develop personality of students and unify a student organization."

Mrs. C. E. Kite: "I think Santa Ana High school at present needs a little more of the 'rah rah' idea. The students don't seem to enjoy the fun of the campus as much as they used to. They don't have assemblies; that, of course, is the fault of having no place to hold them. I think, too, the morale of the student body has broken down somewhat. I know many mothers who are having to urge their children to go to school. I think there should be much more done to build up a spirit at the school."

WILSON HOME IS SCENE OF BRIDGE

Mrs. Russell Wilson, 325 Sixth street, Tustin, hosted yesterday afternoon at her home for two tables of bridge.

High score prize went to Mrs. Robert Guild. Others present were Mesdames Edmund West, Barney Fiebler, Bernard Parker, Harold Dale, George Walker, Raymond Terry of Anaheim and the hostess.

EXOTIC HEADGEAR

One of the most unusual hats of the season was worn by lovely Florence Rice, young Columbia player, at a formal gathering recently. Fashioned of black faille, with wool veil posed over the forehead, it gave the effect of an ancient Egyptian headdress.

A novel trimming was the antennae of ostrich which trimmed the padded flange.

CHAPTER XXXVI

When Alma's father returned, a few minutes after Johnnie had gone, he found her sitting in the living room, staring stonily ahead of her. He had brought Chris Gordon back with him.

"Alma," he said hesitantly, "Chris told me the whole story about Johnnie. I think you ought to hear it."

She looked at them unsmilingly. "Yes?" she said, without expression.

Chris seemed embarrassed. "I didn't quite realize the situation," he said slowly, "until your father came to me. You asked me about Johnnie before, Alma, and I would not tell you—said that was to Johnnie. But your father has made me see that it's time for an outsider to take a hand. Johnnie is behaving like an idiot, and I'm going to tell him so! Meanwhile I think it's only fair that you should know what's behind all this."

Alma turned away. "You're mistaken," she said coolly. "I'm not at all interested."

"Now, don't you behave like an idiot!" said Chris, reddening. "I'm going to tell you whether you're interested or not! It's only fair to Johnnie, if not to you. He's a thorough, unmitigated Sir Galahad donkey—that's what he is! When his law partner got into a jam, a few years back, and faced imprisonment, Johnnie stepped forward, shouldered the blame, and stepped out."

"Everybody knew he was innocent, but they couldn't prove anything against his partner, and Johnnie had convicted himself on his own statements. Under the circumstances, however, he got off with a light sentence and was later pardoned. He dropped out of sight, roamed around. That's how he happened to come here."

Alma was now staring at Chris, no longer masking her feelings. "But why in the world should Johnnie do such a thing, and why did his partner let him?"

"His partner had tuberculosis, and Johnnie thought a prison term would kill him. He had foolishly, blindly, idolized the fellow— heaven knows why. It was a great shock to him when the fellow turned out to be a crook, and Johnnie refused to believe that he actually was—convinced himself that the man's action had resulted from temporary insanity. Anyway, he shouldered the blame to save his partner from what he thought would be a fatal prison term, and the partner let him because he was just a plain weakling and knew that Johnnie could get off easily."

"Johnnie's lived it down and has been reinstated in the bar, but I suppose he has a fool notion that, with the smirch on his name, he has no right to ask a girl to marry him. It's a lot of nonsense! He needs someone to talk to him like a Dutch uncle, and I'm the man who's going to do it!"

He turned toward the door as though he were about to dash right off to tell Johnnie what he thought of him.

"Don't say a word to him!" Alma cried out. "I'll never forgive you if you do."

But Chris waved her objections away.

"You just leave this to me," he said. He stalked out, slamming the door behind him.

Alma looked in dismay at her father. "Oh, why did you have to go to Chris? Now, he'll make a fine mess of things!" She leaped up, with sudden decision. "I'm getting away from here—as fast as I can. He'll be bringing Johnnie back here before we know it, and I'll just die if I have to see Johnnie again! We're going to drive up to Aunt Cynthia's right away! I'll leave a note for Caroline."

Leaving her father gaping, she dashed upstairs to her room and began throwing things into a small suitcase. With a sigh of resignation, Lawson Whitaker followed her and collected a few necessities of his own.

In 10 minutes, they were off, hurrying through the night in Alma's roadster.

It was the next day. Alma, out for a stroll, had wandered down the lane to the pasture where she and Johnnie had picked blueberries so many years ago. Seated on a big flat boulder, she leaned her back against a tree and basked in the sunshine, letting its soft warmth lull her into forgetfulness.

After a while, she rose and started back to the fence, but halfway there, she stopped suddenly as she saw a car wheel sharply into the yard and saw Chris Gordon tumble out.

She turned quickly, and retraced her steps to the boulder, where she flung herself down. Why did Chris have to follow her here? Why did he have to meddle? She didn't want to see him! She wouldn't see him!

Presently, she heard footsteps approaching. She did not turn. "Go away, Chris!" she said. "I don't want to talk to you!"

"Alma," it was Johnnie! He was down beside her, his arm around her.

"Johnnie," she whispered. "I thought you had gone back to New York." Oh, now it was going to begin all over again! Darn Chris Gordon, anyway!

"I couldn't, darling," Johnnie said softly. "I—I've come to ask you to marry me—if you can forgive me. . . . Will you, sweet-heart?"

Alma stared at him. "Marry you, Johnnie?" Then, suddenly, she started laughing— hysterically. "Marry you now! After Chris Gordon had browbeaten you into coming up here to ask me? No! Not now, Johnnie!" And, then, breaking down completely, she burst into tears.

Johnny looked stricken. He turned away, hugging his knees. "Chris Gordon has nothing to do with it," he said miserably. "He did a lot of ranting and raving, but I told him it was none of his business. Won't you understand, Alma? I wanted to explain things to you—but I could not. There were others involved. And I—couldn't ask you to marry me—couldn't ask you to share my name—with things as they were. I wouldn't be asking you now if—if something hadn't happened. But it has nothing to do with Chris Gordon."

Alma wiped her eyes. "Wh-what do you mean, Johnnie?"

"My former law partner died yesterday—tuberculosis, I guess," Chris told her. Before he died, he made a statement—confessing everything and completely clearing my name. I just got word this morning. That makes everything different. I—I figured you had probably come up here, so I got Chris to drive me up in his car."

He turned to her again, and took her in his arms. "Alma darling, I love you—have loved you from the first moment I saw you! Won't you please forgive me? Won't you take back that no and say yes?"

She buried her head against his shoulder. "Y-yes, Johnnie," she whispered and gave way to a fresh flood of tears—tears of happiness now. At last, Johnnie had said it! At last, he had told her he loved her!

But he wasted no more time on words. He tilted her chin up, smiled down at her tear-stained face, then bent to kiss her.

SAFETY PLAY OVER KVOE TONIGHT

What will the people of the United States do about the appalling number of traffic accidents that occur daily? It is a question of legislation? It is a question of more strict law enforcement? Can the problem be solved only by increasing the number of patrolmen so that "John Law" will always be on hand? Or can it be solved by education concerning the horrors, suffering and misery resulting from careless and reckless driving?

Whatever you think the answer is, don't fail to hear "Jackie, the Son of a Hard Boiled Cop," written by Officer Arthur C. Rich, policeman-poet of San Gabriel, to be dramatized on KVOE tonight at 6 o'clock by a professional cast of 13 persons. It will tell of the need for greater caution in a different way.

Capt. H. C. Meehan of the "Orange county squad, California highway patrol, will speak.

"Musical Moments"

A current popular song and one of yesterday will be featured by the Sterling male chorus in tonight's "Musical Moments" presentation of KVOE at 7 o'clock when they will vocalize "Cling to Me" and "The Voice in the Old Village Choir," the latter number being particularly rich in intriguing and delightful harmonies. The orchestra will offer contrasting tunes with the fox trot; "Moon Rose," and the tango, "La Cumparsita."

In the second "Garden School of the Air" broadcast of the new series, Major Harry L. Bateson, F. R. H. S., will discuss asters and roses, how to plant and cultivate them, and how to obtain the best blooms, at 7:45 o'clock tonight.

"The season for planting flowers in Southern California is every month of the year," Major Bateson says, "providing a little care is taken."

The speaker is recognized throughout the world as an authority on flower and vegetable gardening, to which he devotes all of his time and energy.

Two more, well-filled market baskets, each valued at several dollars, will be given away during the market program hour to-night from 8 until 9 o'clock, in addition to a 32-piece dinnerware set. Participation in the prize drawings are not restricted to anyone and it is not necessary that participants buy anything. Full details of the drawing will be announced at the beginning of the program at 8 o'clock. Telephoned requests will be at KVOE by calling Santa Ana 4900, only between 8 and 9 o'clock.

Assistant Superintendent of Orange County Schools Arthur F. Corey will discuss the origin and value of Aesop's Fables during this tenth broadcast of the Gems from Juvenile Literature series, especially for children, at 5:30 p. m. today. Because of the historical interest, adults as well will find this to be an attractive broadcast.

Radio Roundup

TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS

By HOMER CANFIELD

THE PALMOLIVE BEAUTY BOX THEATER is going off the air! But the sponsor isn't! They're replacing the opera series with an hour-long feature to be known as the "Ziegfeld Follies of the Air!" And that, all you ardent dial twisters, is a bit of news that needs plenty of digesting.

A telegram from New York states that the new series, starring Fanny Brice, James Melton, Patti Chapin and Al Goodman, will start February 22. However, local bigwigs are of the opinion that present difficulties in clearing the title will hold up the show a week or two.

PETITE STAR MAKES RADIO DEBUT

JANET GAYNOR, THE WISTFUL little lady of screendom, makes her radio debut on "Hollywood Hotel" tonight. Appearing with her will be Lewis Stone and Robert Taylor in scenes from the new movie "Small Town Girl." (KHJ, 6)

METROPOLITAN MATINEE

VERDI'S "Il Trovatore" is the opera to come from the Metropolitan tomorrow morning. Giovanni Martinelli, Elisabeth Rethberg, Richard Bonelli and Katherine Meisle will sing the major roles. (KFI, KECA, 10:55)

TRAGEDY HITS TWICE IN DAY

MOJAVE, Feb. 14. (AP)—Tragedy struck twice at the family of Roy E. Pitts in one day.

His three children, Roy, Jr., 9, Rita, 6 and Robert, 3, burned to death yesterday morning when fire destroyed their cabin at Crestview Lodge, north of Bishop in the High Sierras.

Last night as Pitts was driving to Los Angeles with Mrs. Pitts, his car developed mechanical trouble and he alighted on the highway north of here to fix it. A passing machine crashed into his car, fracturing his shoulder. Pitts and his wife were taken to the Tehachapi hospital. Mrs. Pitts is suffering from burns from her attempt to save the children, and from shock.

California ships more than two-thirds of all the cauliflower grown in the United States.

Five Star Weekly Offers Real Reading Fun for All In The Journal Tomorrow

The Five Star Weekly is out again tomorrow, presenting another array of interesting, entertaining new features for the entire family.

Brought to your door each Saturday exclusively by The Journal, this weekly magazine supplement has everything to satisfy that "something-to-read" urge.

Tomorrow, for instance: "Spans the Pacific in 50-Footer" presents the thrilling story of Master Mariner Ernest Philip Green, who in his home-made 50-foot yacht sailed across the Pacific in 153 days, and who is planning another trip, this time to England.

There is a story of the real vanishing American—the cowboy, and how modern times have changed the fenceless range. And on another page the tale of the world's most unusual telephone exchange, that in Chinatown.

"Down to Her Last Cent" tells the story of the California novelist who, when she was about to apply for relief, received a check for $5,500 for a novel she's just written.

There also is the Jean Rendell serial of food, fashion and good neighbors, "The Family Next Door," and the children's page, and the page of filmland news. These things and many other features and exciting true-life stories fill the Five Star Weekly tomorrow.

It makes The Journal the biggest and best newspaper value your money will ever buy. It's on sale with The Journal at newsstands, too.

CLOSSON URGES REGISTERING

LODI, Feb. 14.—An appeal to all patriotic Californians to register for the 1936 elections was issued here today by Archie M. Closson, past state commander of the American Legion.

"In order that democratic government rule of the majority may prevail, the citizens who are eligible to vote should register immediately," Mr. Closson said. "We of America have a concept that we are ruled by a majority. Such is not the case. Only 60 per cent of the qualified citizens register and then only 60 per cent of those registered actually vote. Therefore, we are ruled not by a majority but by a minority."

"Let us for once produce a government of majority by registering and exercising that privilege of the citizen... the franchise."

OLIVE IMPROVEMENT GROUP HEARS TALK BY STEPHENS

OLIVE.—Henry C. Stephens, from the Santa Barbara Juice Company in Orange, was speaker at a meeting of the Olive Improvement association held Tuesday in St. John's Parochial hall. Dinner was in charge of Mrs. A. J. Lee.

Mr. Stephens explained his method of canning orange juice and gave cans of the finished product to his audience, offering an invitation to visit the plant in Orange at any time.

Plans for a community clubhouse were discussed when Mrs. Effie McCoy reported that the secretary of the Jotham Bixby Company has agreed to put a deed in escrow for a 125-foot lot near the grammar school for that purpose.

SAFETY PLAN TO BE TOLD BY HOWARD

Santa Ana Chief Will Present Program to Judges of County

Plans for a county-wide safety campaign will be presented at a meeting of county justices of the peace and city judges in Fullerton on Feb. 20 by Chief of Police Floyd Howard of Santa Ana, Chief Howard announced today.

He also will present the plan, which he is working out in conjunction with the associated chambers of commerce of the county, at a meeting of that group in Garden Grove on Feb. 25, he said.

The plan will entail a coordination of all county police and peace activities, and stringent punishment for violators of safety laws, Chief Howard said.

First step in the program will be inaugurated next Monday in Santa Ana, when Chief Howard will ask the city council to approve his plan for a rock pile in Santa Ana as a corrective to reckless or drunk drivers.

What is believed to be the world's largest cotton stalk, one with 715 bolls, was grown at Alpharetta, Ga., and is on display in the Georgia capitol museum.

She will appear at the junior college at 9 a. m., and at the Willard Junior High school at 12:40 p. m. Willard school will be host to the Tustin High school and Santa Ana High school students.

Besides the international professional record, Miss Stollnitz also holds the novice record of 114 net words per minute for 15 minutes, and is the first person to have won the amateur record of 137 net words per minute for 30 minutes, during her first amateur year test.

Miss Stollnitz, who comes to California direct from a tour of eastern cities, will appear in Santa Ana through the courtesy of R. B. Gould, manager of the Santa Ana branch office of Remington Rand, Inc.

She also will be at the Fullerton High school, addressing students from Orange, Anaheim, Placentia, Garden Grove and Brea, at 3:45 p. m., and at the Huntington Beach high school at 11:30 a. m.

'Shadows' Watch For Foes Of Mussolini And Hitler

ROME, Feb. 13. (AP)—Premier Mussolini is adding a thousand men to the shadowy army which keeps him close to the thoughts of his countrymen.

Il Duce

ernment up to the minute on popular feeling.

A telegram from Rome to Marshal Badoglio asking a victory may mean that wonder at the army's slow advance has reached the murmuring stage.

The importance of Il Duce gives to this body is seen in his allotment of 8,000,000 lire additional for it this year. In former times when the chief duty was rounding up anti-Fascists it was spending between 15 and 20 million lire annually.

Barbers Listen In

While the Fascist party was establishing itself most Italians kept discreet silence on political questions.

"The walls see," they whispered.

Today, however, there is less of that. The average Italian mulls over the news with his friends.

Nevertheless, some of the agent's still approach the fiction writer's idea of a spy. Placed to burrow into the daily movements of possible trouble makers, they may appear in almost any occupation—as barbers, house servants, waiters, or what not.

Street Corners Watched

Others are more noticeable. They are plain clothes men who idle on important street corners and check the conversation and movements of all who pass.

The plain clothes officers frequently disclose themselves, by asking to see a stranger's "documents." If he be a foreigner, they want to see his passport and "sojourn permit." Leaving one's documents in the other suit may cause several annoying hours.

Created by Two Men

The Gestapo is the organizing achievement of two men. In Prussia its creator was General Goering, who still is chief of the secret state police in addition to his other offices.

In Bavaria the builder of the brotherhood was Heinrich Himmler. He is chief of the secret police in all parts of Germany except Prussia, where he is Goering's deputy.

San Jose, county seat of Santa Clara, was founded in July, 1846, and the first California legislature convened there Dec. 15, 1849. At Sunnyvale is the $5,000,000 dirigible base, now under army control.

Gilroy, a charming city in the southern end of Santa Clara valley, is known as "The Home of the Grape." Here are about 15,000 acres of prune trees and an enormous acreage of apricots, pears, grapes, tomatoes and lettuce. The county boasts the beautiful cities of Los Altos, Los Gatos, Palo Alto, Santa Clara and Saratoga. Population: 145,118; 1328 square miles.

MODEL ASKS DIVORCE
RENO, Nev. Feb. 14. (AP)—Lillian Frances Kenton, famous model of cigarette advertisements, has filed suit here to divorce Duncan McMartin, Canadian and New York gold mining millionaire. She charged cruelty.

Queen Caroline, wife of King George II of England, had a gown made of silk raised in Georgia.

1,068,000 VETS SEEK BONUSES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. (AP)—President Roosevelt was informed today that 1,068,000 veterans have filed applications for cash payment of the bonus up to Feb. 8. Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator, who reported to the President, said that 3,900,000 veterans were eligible for the cash payments.

U. S. C. SCIENTISTS TO MAKE TOUR WITH HANCOCK

Scientists and collectors from U. S. C. will go with Capt. G. Allan Hancock on his fourth expedition to the South Pacific waters, leaving this week from Wilmington in the Valero III.

John F. Garth, cardiologist; Fred Ziesenhenn, ichthyologist, and Charles Towers and Alec Hill, zoologists, all of U. S. C., will join the Valero's crew of 17.

Dredging for specimens, studying ocean temperature and surveying currents for the U. S. navy will occupy the expedition, which is to visit the Islands of Tiburon and Tortugas, going as far south as Peru. A bat that feeds on fish in the Gulf of California, rare shrimp and other strange sea life will be studied.

Sally's Bubble Dance Almost Halted by Nimrod

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 14. (AP)—A special policeman spoiled Alfie Kreiberg's fun. Alfie, who cost his papa $28.50 recently in city courts by popping a "bubble" dancer's balloon with an airgun, was caught entering a Sally Rand performance the other night with the gun and a slingshot, too.

"Aren't you sorry you tried to do this?" asked Miss Rand, onetime fan dancer who now "dresses" with a bubble.

"Yes," mumbled Alfie, and added, "but I wouldn't have been caught if I'd gone down that other aisle!"

TRADE ON EGGS IS OFFERED

Oswald's Fourth Street Market will offer the local rancher, for a limited time, an opportunity to receive a greater profit from his eggs. This will be made possible by his trading in eggs for groceries. The grocery manager, "Dick" Klaus, said he will allow the farmer 3 cents over the market price per dozen for eggs, which is equal to about 15 per cent greater returns on the present wholesale value of the eggs.

Mr. Klaus said in taking his action he will not only allow the farmer to make more profit from his eggs, but also customers that trade at the market will be given the chance to purchase fresh ranch eggs at the lowest possible prices.

Although this trade deal will not be in effect in the meat department, manager George Apel said that quality meats will continue to be featured at prices that the thrifty housewife cannot afford to pass by.

$22,000 a Day

TWENTY-TWO thousand dollars worth of storm water a day running down the Santa Ana river into the ocean. Who pays the staggering bill?

Everybody pays. There's no way for a single soul living in Orange county to dodge his proportionate share of the cost—unless he moves away.

This wasted water is worth exactly what it costs to replace through our increasingly expensive system of aqueducts, reservoirs, and pipelines.

For every $22,000 worth of water that washes out to sea, another $22,000 must be pumped up or brought in. The rancher pays direct for irrigation. The householder pays for tap water. And the store and factory operators pay for industrial supplies.

In the long run many of these water dollars are added to the cost of oranges, walnuts, groceries, milk, automobiles, clothes, newspapers, and the hundreds of other needs and luxuries of complex civilization. And so the total cost is widely distributed—increasing the general cost of living.

Perhaps the saving of $22,000 worth of storm water a day several times a year—provided that it could be saved in a practical way at a reasonable expense—wouldn't solve the county's water problem. Perhaps it wouldn't be a drop—or shall we say a dipperful—in the bucket.

But at least it would be $22,000 several times each year—and that mounts to a total which should make a paying proposition out of any logical water conservation plan.

What's Wrong With Paroles?

JAMES H. STEPHENS, Sacramento banker and one of the three members of the state board of prison terms and paroles, comes to the defense of the parole system by reminding us that only 6 per cent of the men paroled return to crime, while 54 per cent of those who complete their prison terms find their way back to prison.

As for Elton Stone, the Fresno county degenerate now awaiting the noose for the murder of Mary Stammers, Mr. Stephens pointed out that if he had not been paroled he would have served his time and been released a full year before the Fresno murder, and that there was nothing in his earlier record to hint at murder or degeneracy.

Not the parole system, but its administration in California, is what is at fault. Today thousands of cases must be passed upon every year by three appointees who are otherwise occupied with their personal affairs and who have only a few hours each week to devote to their public duties. It is absurd to entrust this work to a contractor, a banker and a lawyer, all of them busy. And it is even more absurd in view of the fact that the chairman of the board gets $6000 a year and the other two members $3000 each.

Paroles should be in the hands of qualified full-time officials giving all their time to the examination of individual cases. For, under the indeterminate sentence law, these three men have a heavier responsibility and a greater power over the lives of men in prison than all our judges combined.

The Influenza Epidemic

CALIFORNIA is suffering from the most widespread epidemic of influenza since 1918, with schools closed in many towns and thousands temporarily incapacitated. Here in Santa Ana scores are down with the disease, but fortunately it is far milder than in 1918—when 450,000 Americans died of it—and there is not the slightest reason for alarm.

We remarked in this column recently that medical science is still baffled by influenza and knows no sure preventive or cure. A friendly reader chides us for taking a "hopeless" outlook, and refers us to the February Reader's Digest, which tells how The Children's Hospital in Philadelphia apparently has the flu germ isolated but can't go ahead with mass preparation of an anti-flu vaccine for lack of $25,000. If the money is all that stands in the way, some wealthy philanthropist should write a check for the sum.

But local doctors whom we have consulted, tell us that, as far as the nation at large is concerned, next to nothing is known yet about our commonest and most annoying scourge.

An Amazing Story

IF YOU are interested in reading a gripping, emotional novel, by all means follow "Paths of Glory" as it runs in The Journal for the next month and a half.

This story, by Humphrey Cobb, was banned in France for its fearless factual picture of tyranny within the French army during the last war—but everywhere else, in this country and abroad, it is acclaimed a masterpiece—one of the great American novels of all time.

"Paths of Glory" does not propagandize against war. It simply tells the truth about a stirring phase of the great conflict. And it starts you wondering. Commence it today.

CONGRATULATIONS are in order. We extend them to Frank Henderson for having been chosen again to superintend for four years one of the finest city school systems in California. And to the Santa Ana school board for having made such a wise selection.

Thoughts while strolling. Nobody can twist an apron and into an anguished ball like Pauline Lord. Or strut about a cabaret floor like Harry Richman. Somehow I always expect Norman Bel Geddes to be wearing a turban. Three famous Bucks—Gene, Pearl and Frank.

Look alike: Premier Laval and Mayor La Guardia. Boy meets girl: Dick

Rosie, the Hippodrome elephant. Add attractive red-heads: Mrs. John Chapman. Lillian Gish's perpetual expression of timorous innocence is drama in itself. Trigger stuff—about Edward VIII cafe all ready.

For the Look Just the Same as 15 Years Ago club: Tom Mix. From wonder child to wonder lady: Helen Hayes. And Charlie MacArthur has fulfilled his marriage promise to her "One thing is certain. You'll never find life dull with me." How about a League for Those Once in Love with Cissie Loftus?

Mae Murray still gracefully waiting the nights away. Broadway's best known chop house lady—Helen Gallagher. Never knew a girl called Flo who wasn't a bit of a tomboy. Most expert of the derby wearers—the new British king. Old timer's sigh: "The right world but the wrong generation."

Zither-playing names—Eva Eymington and Spring Byington. Dusky Josephine Baker topsy turns Paris for years but New York bestows only an indifferent shrug. Why is that? Those frosted cakes in Schrafft's windows affect me emotionally around 6 p. m. I want to bay like a hound!

F. Scott Fitzgerald, greying and chunking up, is reputedly one of the most difficult authors from whom editors may wrangle stories these days. He is the literary symbol of an era—the era of the new generation—and editors continue to want stories of flash, gin and courteous collegialities preceding ladies through windshields on midnight joy rides. The public has acquired this Fitzgerald taste, too. But Fitzgerald has taken an elderly and naturally serious turn. Melodrama is the term. He wants to write mellow, too. And if they won't let him he won't write at all. So there.

Chinatown is feeling the pinch of the times. Its opulence depends on tourists. I counted but four other diners outside of our party of three at the Port Arthur the other evening. There was a drop to the big and piano-box souvenir shops and we were the sole visitors to the prop house. But Chinatown has never been the same for me since the passing of its pseudo-mayor, Chuck Connors. Chuck, as a guide, ventilated exaggerations that made one scent opium, look about furtively for a flying tong hatchet and the slippery tread of low fu shoes. Chinatown has always been 80 per cent money but with an efficient cicerone it provided a shudder or so for visiting cousins.

Frazier Hunt's ranch in Alberta, Canada, adjoins that of King Edward and it was in this communion that Hunt authored "The Bachelor Prince," a biography of the Prince of Wales. No American likely has known the new king more informally. He has ridden range with him, played poker in a lamp-lit ranch house and feasted on midnight beer and cheese while each discussed their jaunts to all parts of the world.

But such contacts are now lost forever. The new king will never travel again, save to India to receive his emperorship. One of Hunt's prized possessions is an enlarged kodak of him and the prince horseback photographed "D. R. Spike—E. P."

Paul Whiteman is another American who has met the king in after midnight informality. During his year's stay with his band in London, the prince on several occasions sent for Paul and his boys—Bing Crosby and Pee-wee Byers among them—and when everybody had departed kept the band leader for a night cap. He likes a sip of beer before retiring.

Major Bowes has become the most gifted man in America. It sometimes requires a truck working all day to carry the perishable stuff to hospitals and orphanages. From Wyoming, for instance, the other day came a 150-pound elk with instructions for Oscar to prepare it for 25 of the Major's friends. The same day 20 crates of grapefruit from Florida, etc., etc.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—There are a lot of interesting factors behind these constantly recurring rumors that Henry Morgenthau will resign as secretary of the treasury.

One significant sign is the consistency with which the rumors crop up. First, Henry is scheduled to go to Spain as ambassador, then to Paris, then to some other place. There is a new batch of rumors almost every month.

This is showproof but sometimes effective strategy. In the game of politics, such a rumor may "get" a man in the end.

And because of the consistency of these reports, some quiet and discreet sleuthing was done to track them down. The trail led to the door of one Boston banker, one Wall Street banker and two officials in the treasury department.

There seemed to be reasonably good evidence that these sources were waging a definite campaign to discredit and oust Morgenthau.

UNPACK
At the height of this campaign, Henry Morgenthau received a little scratch-pad sheet of paper such as that on which the President scribbles memos. It bore the single word "unpack" and it was initialed "F. D. R."

Puzzled as to what this was, Morgenthau called up Presidential Secretary Marvin McIntyre, asked him for an explanation.

"Oh, don't you know that famous phrase?" joshed McIntyre. That was the message Al Smith was supposed to have cabled the pope after his defeat in 1928: "Unpack."

NO RESIGNATION
Real fact is that there is about as much chance of Morgenthau resigning as there is of Roosevelt himself.

No one stands stronger at the White House. No cabinet member confers often with the President. Henry is one of the few still privileged to attend early morning bedside conferences.

As secretary of the treasury, Young Henry has been as efficient an executive as he has been hated by Wall Street.

But his resignation probably will continue. But they will not be fulfilled.

Periodic resignations of his under secretaries also will continue.

Reason: It is impossible to find an under secretary who has the support of the bankers and at the same time believes in Roosevelt's monetary policy.

In the long run, Young Henry is going to have to be his own under secretary.

FARM BILL REPAIRED
Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith, chairman of the agriculture committee, was making a warm defense of the new farm relief bill.

"We must not lose sight of the fact," he orated, "that this is a soil-erosion and soil-conservation bill."

"Will the distinguished senator from South Carolina," broke in Senator Charley McNary, keen-witted Republican floor leader, "please look serious the next time he makes that statement?"

"I must admit," replied Smith as he joined in the laughter, "that lately I have reached a point where it is impossible to be serious."

Mrs. A. J. Crookshank was hostess to the Inter-Club yesterday afternoon, the affair being in honor of St. Valentine's day.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Baker were hosts to 14 of their friends at a charming 630 dinner last evening. After dinner, conversation and selections by a male quartet composed of Messrs. Conway, Jayne, Coffman and Baker were enjoyed.

Mrs. C. F. Krauss was hostess at a delightful afternoon affair yesterday. Those present besides the hostess were Messdames J. S. Rice, B. E. Turner, P. R. Reynolds, Alice Harris, W. E. Winslow, R. E. Reid, A. W. Lyon and Sherman Stevens, and Misses Stella Preble and Rosa Boyd.

Athletes at the high school have been putting in some hard work the past week or two in preparation for the interclass meet to be held at the Lincoln school grounds Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. From the winners of the meet will be selected the track team to represent the school this season.

As a result of the municipal water bond election held yesterday Santa Ana will soon be able to spend $20,000 for a new reservoir and well. The bonds carried by a vote of 478 to 85.

APPROVES L. A. BOYCOTT
To the Editor: More power to Chief of Police Davis in Los Angeles for taking the initiative in curbing the great influx of undesirable into our state.

The chief executive of the state, to whom such a job rightly belongs, is probably too busy explaining away his mounting deficit or dreaming of the White House, to bother with a small detail like protecting our borders from the rejects of the balance of the country.

Chief Davis and Los Angeles are to be congratulated on taking this step, and if the other large municipalities in the state had any gumption they would offer their cooperation in manpower and funds. Why any community in the state should criticize this action, which is for the good of the entire state, is utterly beyond me. W. A. I.

NOW PART OF L. A.
To the Editor: And now we are in "Greater Los Angeles"—something I had hoped not to live to see. I had always figured that maybe St. Peter would have something for me out there wherever he is, and get my transfer before the Southern California chamber of commerce would get utterly ambitious and take us in.

Could it be true that the Los Angeles chamber believed that the affluent could read their wide-flung and glamorous advertisements of the sunny land where sorrow and want would never be, and that only those well able to pay their way and buy real estate, and in other ways add to the increase of the population? The Turkish national assembly has voted $16,500,000 for the development of her military aircraft, at present said to comprise 370 first line machines. Developments in the international situation are given as the reason.

What Other Editors Say

THE CASE FOR LOS ANGELES

(San Francisco News)
Los Angeles has been goaded into a step that will bring censure on the city and in fact the entire state by the failure of the federal government to face its responsibility to penniless transients.

Sending Los Angeles policemen to the state border to turn back transients in defiance of law is not the way to solve a problem that in itself deserves sympathetic consideration. We can see only one possible benefit—wide publicity for the fact that Southern California already has more than it can do in caring for the indigents already there and that newcomers will be greeted with the cold shoulder.

That may keep away a few transients, but Los Angeles will pay the price for its high-handed methods in widespread public resentment and criticism.

Yet Southern California has a legitimate grievance. It should protest to the federal government against the obvious unfairness of dumping thousands of additional indigents on a community that has no responsibility for their support and that has no legal means of keeping them away.

Here is just one of the many problems left on the doorsteps of states and counties by the sudden termination of direct federal relief. Transient relief was discontinued by the federal government on Sept. 20, and since then the only federal fund available is one for the sole purpose of returning transients to their home states.

In practice the return of these transients has proved impracticable because many have lost touch with their home communities and are now repudiated by relief officials in their home counties. Residence must be proved before they can be returned, and many officials in Eastern states even refuse to answer letters of inquiry. Here in California their plight is pitiable, for under the three-year residence law passed in 1933 they are ineligible for county aid and their sick are denied care.

Los Angeles should be joined by all California in an emphatic protest to federal relief authorities in Washington. Here is one relief problem that belongs squarely on the shoulders of Uncle Sam. Such transients as cannot be returned directly to their home communities should be housed and fed by the federal government.

Zeller Robertson was another who tested out the storm. He fought the elements all the way from Pomona to Santa Ana—and arrived. The winds blew, the floods descended, and the storm beat upon the automobile, but Zeller had enough gas, the ignition remained dry, and the highway offered no resistance. It's a great trip in the rain when everything goes all right with the car. Zeller drew his way through. Maybe it's because he's from Alabama. Anyway, he's a hard man to stop.

Then came along another acquaintance who wanted to tell me a story about the time he and a friend were touring Indiana, and it got so wet they stalled. How to get started was something of a problem, and remained so until one of the car occupants volunteered to go for help, and he started around the car and kept going around until, believe it or not, help arrived. That reminds me of the advice an old friend gave me, when he discovered I was trying to find a certain party. He said stand still and the fellow you are looking for will come to you.

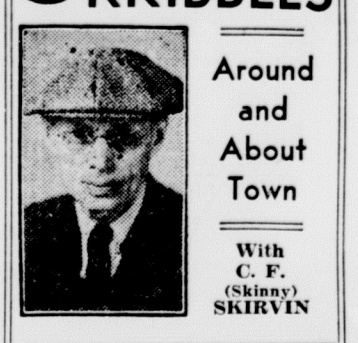

All of which doesn't compare with the beneficial effects of the wholesome rain which came to us when so many were giving up hope. Don't you know that all is well and the government in Washington is spending more than it is taking in? But that's takin' sides, so we will cut that out, and wait to find out what Walter Winchell has to say about it.

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

Believe it or not, a lot of folk found out the roof leaked. And they couldn't get it fixed when it was raining, and didn't need to when it was dry, so the old "Arkansas Traveler" hasn't got anything on us.

And something else I don't believe—that Long Beach was swept off the map by a tornado. One of the city papers tried to create that impression, but I talked to Bob Geivet and he said the report was comparable to the rumor which was circulated about Mark Twain being dead when he was alive. You can't do that and get away with it. Long Beach, according to the surveyor's measurements, is still the same length.

After listening to Dr. Wade tell about the exhilaration of skiing. I've decided it's a thrilling sport if you take the trees out of the way. Sometimes the skis do not turn in time, the trees won't.

An Idaho farmer, 84, says: "Next time I marry it will be with an angel after I die." It might turn out to be a hell of a life for his wife. However, I get the impression from his statement that his earthly experience has not been satisfactory.

Mr. Ripley, you can believe it or not, but this is one day when no one offered to buy me a coca-cola.

And then there was the fellow who defied the First Street Santa Ana river flood. His car stopped in the middle of the stream, but he asked for it.

Do you remember away back when it was popular to buy an umbrella, but not to use it? A friend told me today that she bought an umbrella for her husband who let it stand in the hallway for seven years. After that he didn't need it.

Now I've really got a rain customer. Makes a prediction that we will have a two-inch rain January 15—next year—but she wants no umbrella. Order is for hip boots. If I can get someone to send the rain I'll take the measurements for the boots.

I don't know who killed cock robin, but I do know who stopped the rain. John Lamb erected barricades on his ranch at a strategic point so as to prevent damage, and just as he finished the work it quit raining.

Fred Fuller has been here so long he is afraid the "cops" don't know him. That isn't Fred's fault. It is because they change "cops" too often. He wanted my opinion as to the risk he would encounter taking a bundle of old clothes to the laundry. He's quite disturbed over police activities. When I asked if he was going to wear 'em or carry 'em, he got the right answer. This situation Fred projects into a suspicious itinerary reminded me of a story about a transient who lauded at the home of a friend and asked him what he did with his old clothes. "Well," he replied, "at night I put them over the back of a chair, and in the morning I put 'em on again."

Zeller Robertson was another who tested out the storm. He fought the elements all the way from Pomona to Santa Ana—and arrived.
